Termed "Adroit Piece of Demagoguery," by New Deal Solons.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Huey P. Long, the left wing political question mark of the future, lost for the time being today in his effort to have the senate investigate Postmaster General Farley, but promised to renew his efforts.

The senate postoffice committee rejected Long's resolution calling for the inquiry—an outgrowth of the protracted and echoing tussle of the Louisiana with the Roosevelt administration. Last night and today, Long made new assaults upon the president and his advisers.

A few minutes after the committee reported, in fact, Long gained a week-end delay in consideration of the work relief bill by means of filibustering tactics, in which disparaging remarks about the New Deal and its leaders were made.

After the postoffice committee had held its fifth meeting in as many days behind closed doors, Chairman McKellar announced it was unanimous in holding "Long had not produced facts or evidence constituting a proper case for investigation by the senate."

Five senators, however, reserved the right to make minority reports on another conclusion by the committee that "no committee of investigation be appointed."

These were Senators La Follette, progressive, Wisconsin; Gibson, republican, Vermont; Schall, republican, Minnesota; Frazer, republican, North Dakota, and Barbour, republican, New Jersey.

All Agree on Facts.

In two separate minority reports, they agreed Long had not presented a proper case for inquiry, but they favored a "thorough investigation."

Joseph E. Berman, fourth ward councilman for the last seven years, will resign his post about May 1 and move with his family to Lexington, Miss., to become associated with his father-in-law, Morris Lewis, in the brokerage business, he announced Friday.

Berman is a member of the law firm of Sims & Berman. While a member of council, he sponsored many measures of city-wide importance and his signature is written on many of the most progressive pieces of legislation which have been enacted.

The newly adopted six-year plan, which the legislature passed Friday to Governor Talmadge for his approval, was championed by Berman in 1931.

Senate Recesses Over
Week-End To Allow

Groups To Act on Bills.

The house of representatives Friday passed a bill giving citizens of Georgia the right to make and sell wine, tax free and without restrictions, so long as Georgia products alone are used in making the product. The vote on the measure was 103 to 27, exactly the number of votes necessary for passage. The bill was transmitted immediately to the senate, where it will be given first reading Monday.

The approval of the wine bill came near the close of a long, nerve-racking day in which the house spent considerable time debating before defeating a proposal to criticize the senate for alleged failure to act on its bills, and the senate likewise became embroiled in a controversy, this one over the imposing of a limit on debate which came just before action on tax exemption and tax limitation measures were set over for definite action Tuesday. The senate controversy ended when the upper branch of the assembly voted to limit debate on all measures to 30 minutes and placed a 15-minute limit on personal privilege speeches.

The house will hold a session today at which general bills with local application only will be acted upon. The senate recesses over the week-end in order to permit important committees to act on matters pending before them. These committees include the subcommittee of the temperance committee which is under instructions to report a prohibition repeal referendum proposal to the full committee Monday noon as well as to report on the beer bill. A subcommittee of Senator William Lester's appropriations committee also will work over the week-end preparing a new appropriations measure which will generally adhere to the figures of the budget commission which the house did not do in the bill it passed earlier in the week.

Unicameral Bill Tabled.

Debate on the wine bill was started after the house had tabled the Arnall-Dyer unicameral bill before the clerk had completed reading it and also had

400 MILLION FUND FOR ARMY PASSED

68 to 15 Senate Vote Puts Near Record Arms Budget Up to House.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—The senate ended a three-day battle over armaments today by voting a near-record $400,000,000 for the war department with authority to increase the standing army from 118,750 to 165,000.

Considerably changed by the senate, the bill will go to conference with the house. The vote on passage was 68 to 15.

"Assuredly our challenge is going to be met," warned Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, in assailing the authorized increase in the army.

"We are continuing the game of bullying, of encouraging and of enticing, the thing no one here desires to engage in."

"We are justifying this increase on the basis of activities of other lands which have seen fit to increase their armies in preparation for war. While we are seeking to justify expenditures on the basis of what others are doing, the others are doing the very same thing on the basis of what we are doing."

He said the army appropriation did not represent all that the military forces would get during the year, adding that $400,000,000 had been given the army and navy during the past two years from public works funds.

To prevent further such allotments, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, introduced an amendment to the work relief bill to bar the use of any of that money for military purposes.

The major increases attached by

PRISONERS KIDNAP GEORGIA SHERIFF

GREENVILLE, Ga., March 8.—(P)—Overpowered, kidnapped and forced to become a hostage of jail breakers late today, Sheriff C. H. Collier, who co-operates in protecting President Roosevelt when the president comes to Georgia, tonight had been freed and was directing a search for the fugitives.

The sheriff returned here after leading the chase for several hours and said the prisoners' trail apparently had been lost near Newnan in the darkness.

Kidnaped by Prisoners.

Five men, charged with robbery, theft and forgery attacked Sheriff Collier as he entered the "bull pen" of the county jail here. After relieving him of his pistol, they forced him into his own automobile.

Speeding away the prisoners with their hostage turned northeast. They released Sheriff Collier at Brooks, Ga., a small town about 35 miles from Greenville.

"They didn't harm a hair of my head," he said later. "In fact, after they took my gun away they told me they were not going to hurt me."

The sheriff called his office here and reported he had commandeered another automobile and was leading a posse after the prisoners. Reports here were that the men apparently were making their way in the direction of a swamp for protection.

Friend of Roosevelt.

Sheriff Collier is a personal friend of President Roosevelt. When the president comes to Georgia for his annual Thanksgiving rest at Warm Springs, about 20 miles from Greenville, the sheriff affords him the protection of some of his men.

Gus Huddleston, clerk of the Meriwether county commission, said the prisoners apparently broke the lock of the door leading to their part of the jail and took advantage of the sheriff as he came in to transfer some other prisoners.

The clerk gave the names of the

W. A. HANCOCK, 72, TAX OFFICIAL, DIES

City Assessor for 14 Years Was Formerly Political Leader.

William A. Hancock, one of the best known residents of Fulton county, and tax assessor of Atlanta for 14 years, died Friday night at his residence at 180 East Seventeenth street, N. E. at the age of 72.

Mr. Hancock would have been 73 years of age today. He had been ill for 10 days.

Born and reared in Atlanta, he was educated in the public schools here and later entered the brick business, founding and heading a number of large brick manufacturing companies here before he entered politics nearly 30 years ago.

He was councilman and alderman for a number of years when he resided in West End, and became a powerful figure in political affairs of the city although he was of a quiet and retiring nature. He had been in every walk of life and formerly was active in the work of the West End Baptist church.

Mr. Hancock retired five years ago after serving as assessor for 14 years, being associated with John Malone, and with Joe Little and Harry Perkins, who are present tax assessors.

His long career in city politics, covering a period of 30 years, gave Mr. Hancock a wide knowledge of city affairs. His hobbies were his family and his work during the years he was an official of the city he labored untiringly in its behalf.

He is survived by his wife; and three daughters, Mrs. George M. Hope, Mrs. J. H. Mary and Mrs. Paul M. Coleman, all of whom reside in Atlanta.

Funeral services are to be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. at the Oakland cemetery. Mr. Patterson & Son will announce further arrangements.

NEW DRIVE LAUNCHED AGAINST REBEL FORCES (Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

ATHENS, March 8.—(AP)—A report that ex-Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, asserted rebel leader, had been wounded on the island of Crete, reached Athens today shortly after the government intercepted other messages indicating insurgents in Macedonia were at the end of their rope.

Fired to renewed expressions of confidence that the week-old revolt was nearly quelled, the government launched another push at the hard-pressed Macedonian rebels, this time from the north.

General Kalistras, loyal commander in the north, sent him men driving down through deep snows at rebel positions already racked by the several days of sporadic aerial bombardment.

Mrs. Gould Wins $25,000 For 'Framed' Divorce Suit

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Wilma E. Gould was awarded $25,000 today for what she called a conspiracy to place her on the receiving end of a "framed" divorce suit.

The judgment was returned by a supreme court jury against Mrs. Gould, Edward Gould, an attorney, and Gerard L. Lusk, a private detective agency.

Mrs. Gould, whose husband, Edward B. Gould, was committed to an institution before his divorce suit came to trial, smiled happily when the verdict was announced and said she was "very pleased" with the amount of damages.

She was sued for 20 times as much as $500,000, but her lawyer suggested in his closing plea to the jury that $250,000 would be sufficient.

Mrs. Gould charged that Harry F. (Liz) Gould, her brother-in-law, and Norman J. Gould, Edward's brother, conspired to frame her for a divorce suit by putting her to bed in his apartment after slipping "knockout drops" in her coffee.

Defense counsel moved unsuccessfully to have the verdict set aside as excessive, and then obtained a 30-day stay to prepare an appeal.

Mrs. Gould, who denied testimony by defense witnesses that she had been in a state of drunkenness before her marriage, said she would return to her dressmaking studio.

Calling on the government to return to policies which would "encourage stabilization and confidence in business," Dr. Brooks' address to the school of commerce of the University System of Georgia, first Rhodes scholar from Georgia, and only Georgian to win the Otto Kahn award, Friday night, explained to members of the Atlanta Lawyers' Club, at their regular meeting, the monetary policies of the Roosevelt administration.

Dr. Brooks traced in detail the various stages of the financial crisis and how the Roosevelt administration has been termed by the government by the step, would be short-lived. He said business needs to return to a gold standard of some gold content. Recognized as one of the best informed economists in the country, he stated that what was needed to restore full confidence to business was a swing away from present policies and realization that all commodity prices are dependent on world trade and that the present isolation policies are "incorrect and unsound."

As a remedy for the present financial condition, Dr. Brooks suggested adoption of a "sound currency." He said: "If action were taken to sterilize, until the gold standard is fully automatic gold standard at the present weight of the dollar, leaving the control of credit in the hands of the federal reserve system, it is probable that the stimulus to sound business recovery would go far toward offsetting the dangers which inhere in current arrangements."

Fords Visit Berry Schools And Mingle With Students

ROME, Ga., March 8.—Henry Ford, the auto magnate, and his wife, Clara, visited the Berry schools near here, and spent the day in a thorough inspection of the institution to which they have contributed thousands of dollars during the last decade for the benefit of mountain boys and girls.

Miss Martha Berry, founder of the schools, showed Mr. and Mrs. Ford about the buildings, which they had not seen since their last visit three years ago.

The auto manufacturer, who is one of the world's richest men, appeared extremely energetic and walked from building to building as Miss Berry told of the plans for the future of the school.

Ford danced with students at an old-fashioned square dance, which was given in honor of the Fords Friday afternoon in Henry Ford hall. The manufacture is maintained in old customs and manners and appeared pleased with the reception the Berry students gave him.

The boys presented him a cake, and the girls gave Mrs. Ford flowers. When the gifts were presented, the Fords rose and bowed, but neither would speak. In fact, Mr. Ford maintained a cool, dignified silence most of the time, except for one instance.

He just could not resist kidding with the children he met at the Potomac Hotel, where he was staying. He was in school near Rome. Though he didn't say much even then, all the children laughed.

the time. A little earlier, however, he had flung new charges at the administration in the senate and said he had "photostatic" evidence to support them. New Deal senators meanwhile were calling his last night's radio remarks "photostatic" evidence to support them.

The Louisiana, who politicians say can not fail to produce a disturbance in the 1936 election with his share-cropper ideas, said the postoffice committee was making an inquiry in advance without calling any of the witnesses he named.

Long's charge in his reply to Johnson last night that the White House had "declared war" on him and Johnson was the "lead-off" man in the congressional campaign to turn him into a little reaction in senate circles.

Several senators said they had listened to the speech, and one of them, Missouri, in democratic circles called it "demagoguery."

Senator Bilbo, democrat, Mississippi, asked what he thought of it, replied: "He didn't say anything to make me think."

Long's office reported receipt of 600 complaints from virtually every state, with only "four criticizing his radio address." It said there were 24 long distance telephone calls last night.

Speaking Engagements. The Louisiana planned to address a share-the-wealth mass meeting in the city of New Orleans, La., on March 11, at the Charleston, S. C., March 23.

Shortly after the senate met today Long had the clerk read what he said was a "photostatic" copy of a letter written by F. A. Guiles, national bank examiner at Atlanta, to A. V. McLane, United States district attorney at Nashville, in August, 1933, saying "unusual, if not irregular" transactions had been carried on by the American National Bank of Nashville in violation of the national banking act.

Long has charged, and Farley denied, that the postmaster-general was instrumental in having McLane removed as a "special man" sent to the Tennessee city on the eve of a grand jury investigation of the bank.

Just before the jury was to act, Long told the senate today, this "special man" made an "hour's speech to the grand jury, and no action was taken."

Farley in a letter sent the committee a "special man" sent to the Tennessee city on the eve of a grand jury investigation of the bank.

McKellar, in a letter sent the committee a "special man" sent to the Tennessee city on the eve of a grand jury investigation of the bank.

Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large to Europe, who with his brother Paul, were said by Long to have been interested in the bank matter, also denied the charges.

Long said the committee was "calling in Farley and the Dietrich brothers to find out if what I say is so or not."

He also supplemented his original charges against Farley with an affidavit from Albert Casy, a local union leader.

LABOR BODY CALLS PARLEY ON STRIKE

Operators and Striking Employees Asked To Send Delegates to Washington Monday.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—The textile labor board tonight asked the Callaway textile mills at LaGrange, Ga., and its striking employees to send representatives to a peace conference next Monday.

The request was made in a letter sent to the two parties, offering the board's services to attempt to settle the strike.

EMPLOYEES SUBMIT PROPOSAL ON STRIKE
LAGRANGE, Ga., March 8.—(AP)—A proposal for settlement of the strike at the Callaway textile mills, submitted by employees, was sent today to Secretary of Labor Perkins as the mills shut down for the usual week recess.

National guardsmen, who have been on duty here several days to prevent possible disorder, prepared to maintain strict vigilance over Saturday and Sunday. Although all was quiet around the plants today, guard officers said there would be more opportunity for trouble when both strikers and workers are at home.

Plan Transmitted.
The plan for ending the walkout was transmitted to Washington through the Georgia Federation of Labor after Governor Talmadge in Atlanta charged that "outside influences" were creating dissension along the textile employees.

In a telegram to Secretary Perkins, copies of which were sent also to President Roosevelt and Senators George and Russell, O. E. Perry, secretary of the Georgia Federation of Labor, offered the proposal that the protested Beadeux work system and wage reductions be submitted to arbitration before the textile labor relations board.

While the arbitration is in progress, the telegram said, the workers would be permitted to return to their jobs "without discrimination except those guilty of violence, if any."

The added suggestion was made that the Callaway mills name five leading competitors and workers' representatives likewise name five more southern competitors as a basis of comparison for wage rates and average machine load.

"Whatever the average machine load and wage rates are in these 10 competitive companies shall be the standard machine load and wage rates in the Callaway mills," the telegram said.

It proposed further "that the Callaway mills agree to recognize the representatives of the organized workers for the purpose of collective bargaining of their members and that if further controversies cannot be settled by conciliation they be subject to arbitration before the same agency as designated to settle the present strike."

The settlement plan resulted from conferences between labor leaders and Colonel Frank Douglas, member of the textile labor relations board sent here from Washington to investigate the strike.

Approximately 2,000 of the 3,000 employees at the vast Callaway plants walked out last week, protesting against the so-called Beadeux system of speeding up work and against promised wage cuts.

Since the troops have been in charge of the strike area there has been little disorder. Union leaders and strikers have asserted frequently that the guardsmen are not needed here, but LaGrange businessmen continued today to express pleasure over their presence.

Governor Comments.
Governor Talmadge's brief statement regarding "outside influences" made reference to "a man named McKewen, of Philadelphia," who the governor said, "directed the Rossville strike." That strike resulted from labor troubles at the Richmond Hosiery Mills.

"Now I note by the papers that a man listed as C. M. Fox, of Atlanta, is down at LaGrange," the governor said, exhibiting a card which identified Fox as a representative of the United Textile Workers of America. "They are the boys who are coming to Georgia trying to stop hungry people from working."

He declined to comment further on the situation.

STATE EMPLOYEES STRIKE IN HAVANA

HAVANA, March 8.—(AP)—Employees of the Cuban state department quit work tonight, leaving only two government departments operating fully, as President Carlos Mendieta's administration took vigorous steps to break strikes gripping the nation.

The cabinet authorized the secretary of the interior to issue provisional licenses to individual citizens to carry arms, this in order to give employees filling strikers' jobs means of protecting themselves.

Shortly afterward police at Camaguey struck at an anti-party, one of the leading groups opposing the government, arresting Aurelio Alvarez, one of its national leaders.

A former secretary of the interior under ex-President Mario G. Menocal, Alvarez was one of the original chiefs of President Mendieta's nationalist party.

Water Mains Bombed.
A bomb heavily damaged one of several water mains at Marianago, which carried Havana's water supply, late this afternoon in the newest flare-up of the intermittent violence, punctuating the storm of strikes raging around the Mendieta government.

With some observers expressing the opinion that the strike movement threatened the entire political, educational and commercial structure of the island, the administration faced this situation:

1. All out three government departments partially or completely paralyzed by walkouts.

2. Nearly 400,000 school teachers and students out of classrooms leading the movement for Mendieta's overthrow.

3. Street car traffic in the city of Havana almost completely stopped, the few cars operating having non-union men aboard.

4. Newspaper publication virtually suspended by strikes of employees protesting government censorship.

5. Emergency hospital and first aid stations functioning in makeshift style because workers were out.

6. No customs or tax collection because of the strike in the treasury department.

7. Port traffic seriously hampered by the strike of customs inspectors.

8. The postoffice closed, no mail moving in or out of Cuba and none moving on the island. No government telephone office was operating.

As the island's two largest labor groups, the Cuban Confederation of Labor and the National Federation of Labor Unions, decided to support the general strike movement in principle, although without setting any date, the government strove to get customs and internal revenue offices functioning again.

Most of the offices were in the hands of military appointees who were not familiar with treasury department procedure.

The situation in interior towns differed from that in Havana only in degree and an air of apprehension was evident as the cabinet, already in permanent session, met hurriedly at the palace during the afternoon to discuss the strike problems.

A bomb explosion in Cardenas today killed Delfin Acosta, chief of police, while at Matanzas, capital of the province of that name, the home of the military supervisor was attacked.

In Havana groups of students marched through the streets, one of them carrying a black banner bearing Mendieta's picture and the inscription "Death to Machado," the inference being that Mendieta is another president such as Gerardo Machado, who was overthrown by revolution in 1933.

14 Bombs Explode.
Fourteen bombs exploded in Havana and its environs during the night, damaging the Havana courthouse and police stations, while seven went off at interior points.

Four Havana newspapers, El Mundo, Nacion, Ahora and La Palabra, said they had been ordered by police to suspend publication. The morning edition of El Pais, however, appeared.

Guillermo Martinez Marquez, director of Ahora, left for Panama by way of Miami this afternoon.

The American ambassador, Jefferson Caffery, would not confirm or deny a report that he had received a letter signed by the "Milicia Ciudadana," a supposed secret organization, warning him either to quit his job, change his policy or suffer death.

Education Needed To Save Nation, Dr. Cox Tells Augusta School Meet

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 8.—(AP)—Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, speaking at the initial session of the southeastern educational conference here, said the American nation is headed for destruction unless saved by modern education.

Dr. Cox was one of two outstanding college officials of the southeast on last night's program and he followed Dr. Gordon G. Singleton, dean of the school of education of Mercer University.

The Emory president said all other nations have displayed four stages of development. These he outlined as conquest, wealth accumulation, wealth dissipation and disintegration, adding that America has passed the third stage and is entering the fourth.

He held that no nation can place the dollar above the worth of man and continue to exist, and asserted that attempts were being made to do just that in America. He said civilization developed in the United States was marvelous, but added that there is a movement of unrest in the nation caused by people paying too little attention to "man's relationship with man."

He described education as attempting to overcome the condition, saying there was a definite movement for more emphasis in education upon the human personality and upon teaching people to live as well as to think.

Dr. Singleton declared there is a new high level of civilization in the offing as compared with the simplicity of social life of the old order, and he urged education of people to "choose good leaders and then be good followers."

Other addresses were made by Mayor Richard E. Allen Jr. and Norman L. Galloway, president of the Richmond County Teachers' Association, sponsor of the conference.

TWO MEN CONVICTED IN "CRYSTAL" CASE
COLUMBUS, Ga., March 8.—(AP)—Two men were sentenced to two-year penitentiary terms each today after being convicted by a federal court jury of conspiracy to violate the food and drug act through distribution of a product known as "Warm Springs Crystals."

The men, named in indictments as Mallory H. Taylor and Curtis J. Hazen, were permitted by Judge Bascom S. Deaver to post bond in order to arrange their affairs before beginning the prison terms.

The government contended that advertising matter and box labels used in the sale of "Warm Springs Crystals" conveyed the impression that the product was manufactured from the water at Warm Springs, Ga.

Government chemists testified the "crystals" were Glauber's salts.

Lost Michigan Child Found Murdered

YPSILANTI, Mich., March 8.—(AP)—The body of seven-year-old Richard Streicher Jr., missing since yesterday, was found beneath a footbridge near the Huron river today.

Police said the child had been stabbed six times, and the body stuffed underneath the bridge approach.

Officers at first thought the boy had been struck by an automobile, but an examination of the body at a mortuary disclosed the wounds.

State police, Washtenaw county officers and police immediately organized a search for more clues, on the theory the boy was slain by a moron.

WIFE OF LEGISLATOR DIES AT KINGSLAND
SWAINSBORO, Ga., March 8.—(AP)—Mrs. and Mrs. C. B. Gay, of Millen, were instantly killed and three negroes were burned to death about 6:30 o'clock tonight when two cars collided on the Millen-Waynesboro highway about three miles east of Waynesboro.

A fourth negro was seriously injured. A negro woman living close to the scene of the crash said the car in which the negroes were riding burst into flames immediately after the collision and that the flames spread so rapidly she could be of no assistance, although she heard the occupants of the car crying for help.

The woman said the fire also reached the Gay car, but that she was able to remove the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Gay before they were burned.

Mrs. Olaxten had been ill for some time. She was a native of Swainsboro and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Durden.

Judge on Bench Learns Of Robbery of His Store

MACON, Ga., March 8.—(AP)—Mayor Herbert Smart, who is sitting on the police court bench because of the illness of Recorder M. Felton Hatcher, nearly fell off the bench this morning when he received a telephone message that early-morning burglars had nearly cleaned out his clothing store.

Police later reported that among the articles stolen were 300 suits of clothing.

A truck was backed up to a rear door of the store, where a lock had been forced, and the goods were carried through this door to the truck and hauled away.

EXTORTION IS CHARGED TO EX-ATLANTA YOUTH

Gray B. Hilsman Indicted; Father Says Son's Trouble Due to Breakdown.

SEATTLE, March 8.—(AP)—Gray B. Hilsman, 23, University of Washington law student and son of prominent Atlanta (Ga.) residents, was indicted under the Lindbergh law by a federal grand jury today.

He was charged with threatening the life of Elizabeth Case, in attempting to extort $1,500 from her father, Frank E. Case, a family friend here, February 12. He is undergoing treatment at a near-by sanitarium.

The youth's father, J. H. Hilsman, of 72 Eleventh street, N. E., who is a prominent stock and bond dealer here, issued the following statement Friday night:

"Gray's trouble is entirely due to a complete, though temporary, physical and mental collapse. He had a breakdown a year and a half ago and was kept in bed several months before he was allowed to carry on his school duties and his second breakdown, which has just occurred, brought on a period of delirium followed by a complete loss of memory of all that occurred during several days."

"The family to which he wrote the letter fully realized that he was temporarily not responsible or able to know what he did. They are helping us in every way, for which we are deeply grateful."

"Gray is in a hospital and his doctors lead us to hope for his entire recovery but warn us it will take some time."

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—A decision to back Secretary Swanson fully in his controversy with Comptroller General J. R. McCarl over payment of transportation to the United States for retired naval officers was reached today by President Roosevelt and his cabinet.

The president ruled that the decision of Secretary Swanson to override the adverse report of McCarl and allow the traveling expenses would stand.

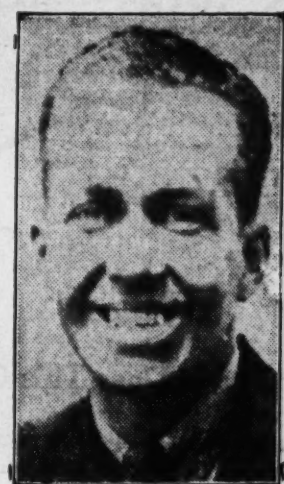

In response to questions at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt explained that former Attorney-General Stone, Attorney-General Cummings and the court of claims all had upheld the right of retired officers to their traveling expenses home from their last post.

"Gray's trouble is entirely due to a complete, though temporary, physical and mental collapse. He had a breakdown a year and a half ago and was kept in bed several months before he was allowed to carry on his school duties and his second breakdown, which has just occurred, brought on a period of delirium followed by a complete loss of memory of all that occurred during several days."

"The family to which he wrote the letter fully realized that he was temporarily not responsible or able to know what he did. They are helping us in every way, for which we are deeply grateful."

"Gray is in a hospital and his doctors lead us to hope for his entire recovery but warn us it will take some time."

ROGERS' BIG SHOW TO OPEN THURSDAY

Net Proceeds of Exposition and Entertainment To Go to Charity.

The greatest food display in the history of Atlanta and the southeast will open at 7 o'clock next Thursday evening when the fifth annual Rogers Stores Food Show and Exposition gets under way in the three-story building at 230 Spring street.

The show, lasting 10 days, will have more than 150 exhibitors, occupying 80,000 square feet of floor space. The building is being decorated for the occasion and will resemble a veritable fairland.

The official opening has been set for 7 o'clock Thursday night. Thereafter, it will be open each afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock, and each evening from 7:30 to 10:30 o'clock, according to John W. Gates, show director.

The entire third floor of the building will be given over to a national foods exhibition, in which approximately 110 manufacturers of foods will participate. Each exhibitor will have demonstration booths and most of them will distribute free samples to persons visiting the show.

All available space in the big building has been taken and workmen and decorators are busy preparing the structure for the show opening. Flowers and greenery are being used lavishly and the interior will resemble a fairland flower garden when the task is completed.

Not only will the countless thousands who attend the food show and exposition benefit themselves by learning of the many improvements made in home economics, but they will likewise advance the cause of organized charity in Atlanta, Mr. Gates revealed.

The net profits of the fifth annual show will be distributed among charitable organizations of the city to assist them in carrying on their work, he announced Friday.

Suspect Identified In Austell Robbery

J. L. Morris, chief of police at Austell, Friday identified D. M. Wheeler, of a Curran street address, who is being held at the city jail in connection with burglary activities, as one of two men who attempted to rob an Austell bank January 2.

The other man was killed in the gun battle in a store building next to the bank building.

Chief Morris presented a warrant charging Wheeler with attempting to rob a bank, but Atlanta officers declined to turn him over to the Austell officer, stating that Wheeler is one of seven men being held by the Atlanta police who have confessed to 27 burglaries and safe-crackings, and that he must first be tried here before they will release him.

The two men were trapped in the furniture store while attempting to tunnel through the wall into the bank building. During the fight between Chief Morris and the men, one of them was shot and instantly killed. His companion escaped.

"SOUSE" MEAT GAG PUTS NEGRO IN JAIL AS COUNTERFEITER

Because the grocery store at 462 Edgewood avenue did not possess "souse" meat Wednesday, Lee Blackwell, 19, negro, of 431 Chamberlain avenue, faces a federal prison term on a charge of counterfeiting.

Blackwell entered the store Thursday and told the manager C. O. Williams, that he had purchased "souse" meat Wednesday and received a counterfeit half dollar in change. Williams remembered the store did not have any "souse" meat that day and began a checkup. He learned that the negro had returned a similar counterfeit coin on March 1 and thereupon called police.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith Friday, Blackwell was ordered held to the federal grand jury in bond of $500. If convicted, he faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison or a $5,000 fine, or both.

REV. BRIDGERS TO OPEN REVIVAL SUNDAY NIGHT

"The Need of a Revival," the subject of a sermon to be preached by the Rev. Luther B. Bridgers, pastor of the Trinity Methodist church, at the 7:30 o'clock services of the Grace Methodist church Sunday night, will begin a two-week revival series there. Dr. W. A. Shelton, pastor, announced Friday.

Dr. Bridgers was the first general evangelist appointed by the Southern Methodist church, and has been in the work for 30 years. He is an evangelist and singer of international fame, having helped establish missions in Belgium, Russia and Poland. He served as chaplain during the World War and has an enviable record for his overseas work.

COTTONSEED BODY HITS MARGARINE TAX LEVY

The Institute of Cottonseed Oil Foods has joined numerous other southern interests in vigorously protesting the bill recently passed by the Wisconsin legislature putting 15 cents a pound tax on margines and telegraph Governor Philip LaFollette demanding an immediate veto of the bill.

The telegram was signed by Earl S. Haines, executive secretary of the Institute of Cottonseed Oil Foods and claimed that the action on the part of the Wisconsin legislature was a "selfish, unfair, unjust, discriminatory and un-American measure and ought to be stopped."

INCOME TAX OFFICE WILL REMAIN OPEN

Offices of the internal revenue department in the old postoffice building will remain open until 5 o'clock this evening in order to assist persons desiring to file 1934 income tax returns. It was announced Friday by W. E. Page, revenue collector here.

Ordinarily the income tax offices close at 12:30 o'clock on Saturday. Mr. Page also issued a warning to citizens to file their tax returns as early as possible. By waiting until the last minute taxpayers may not be able to file returns on March 15 and in consequence will incur a 25 per cent penalty.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 9, 1935.

FOR BETTER GOVERNMENT

The enactment by the general assembly of the measure reducing the size of the Atlanta city council from 39 to 18 members brings a long-needed reform in the structure of our municipal government.

The 13 wards now existing are reduced to six, with two councilmen and one alderman from each ward. The board of education is reduced to six members, one from each ward, which is enough.

The measure will, of course, be signed by the governor, since it was favored by an overwhelming mandate of the people in a referendum vote.

The change marks a striking advance toward increased efficiency and more businesslike conduct of the public business.

Under the law just enacted, the reduction in the size of council becomes effective January 1, 1937, the present council holding over meantime. There can be no objection to this, as this council has made an excellent record, but our experience in the past has shown that unwieldy councils can sometimes cast discredit on the city, and make a botch of municipal administration.

This experience should be our warning against a repetition of past councilmanic conduct that has scandalized the city.

Reduction in members, however, is not all that is necessary to safeguard the city. After all, it is up to the voters of the city, but it is easier for them to make wise selections when the choice is limited to a few, rather than to a field so large as to mystify the average voter.

Many other cities, realizing the importance of concentrating administrative and legislative authority in small and able groups, have so reformed their municipal governments, and in every instance the change has proven to be beneficial.

And so it will, for Atlanta.

WISCONSIN'S UNWISE STEP

The telegram sent by a group of Georgia women to Governor Philip La Follette, of Wisconsin, urging that he veto the 15-cent-a-pound tax on products containing cottonseed and peanut oils, should serve a good purpose in illustrating the mistaken policy embodied in this tax.

The levy was enacted for the avowed purpose of "protecting" the dairy interests of the state, evidently with no consideration being given to the fact that the real prosperity of the rapidly developing industry depends not upon the sales of its products in Wisconsin, but in the large quantities being shipped to other states.

The certain effect of the tax will be to arouse prejudice against Wisconsin butter in the numerous states producing cottonseed and peanut oils, and the result of the tax will inevitably be to reduce the market for the Wisconsin product. The tax will act as a boomerang, doing more harm than good to the dairy interests of the state.

At the same time the poorer classes of Wisconsin's people will have to pay practically twice as much for what has become known as "the poor man's butter." The various substitutes for butter, while perhaps not as finely flavored, are equally as nutritious and body-building, and their use by those unable to afford butter has steadily increased during recent years.

The new tax is tantamount to a tariff by Wisconsin against the

The Chill of Timbuctoo.

There are scenes which are universal. And this letter, which deals among other things with such a scene, really requires no date, no certificate of origin and no stamp. The day's setting in Cork, Ireland, in Vancouver, Polaris or Tokyo, in our time: the square of Babylon in Nebuchadnezzar's day; London's Haymarket when Cromwell's cavaliers cluttered their spurs on the cobblestones; the Areopagus of Athens when Socrates and his friends passed by, yes, or the Street of the Well at Nazareth when the little child Jesus amused himself with his little brothers and friends.

There were always children, even in the Garden of Eden. In fact that garden would not have been paradise without them, and their games were pretty nearly the same in all epochs of history. Like the lads of Pompeii the day before their city was buried under lava, the boys of Timbuctoo played catch-ball, hide-and-go-seek and leapfrog. They accompanied these games with a awful lot of shouting and cursing, more, they derived no small amount of fun from the fact that a pale-faced stranger had hunched down in the shade of a temple wall to watch their games.

The other thing they did, crowd around that stranger and after a lot of timid giggling, begin shouting ribald insults and boyish imprecations at him, was nothing new either. The youth of the Hague, that hot spot of European cities, pulled the pig tails of the Chinese mandarins who attended the first peace conference in 1908, so that Hollanders in the capital of China, yes, and to go back a little further, we all remember the story of those little children of Bethel who saw the Prophet Elijah, and by their shiny dome and who promptly started a chorus of "Baldy, baldy, old baldy Elisha!" Whereupon the man of God, who remembered not so angry that he cursed the children in the name of Jao, and lo, she-bears came out of the woods and devoured every one of the 42 kids. Nice work, what?

The players in the square were between the ages of 8 and 12, pleasant-faced and lithe of body like all Moorish children. They flung down their wooden burlens in a heap at the corner, as we did, and the crowd of children who played football in the church square, and started in. I did not know what to admire most, the serious faces of the lads which deployed into joyous laughter in a flash, the imprecations with which they threw the ball, or the colors with which the sinking sun powdered the square.

But I was not left long to my solitudinal meditations. One sly youngster with huge black eyes (as Max Band the Parisian master painter eyes) slowly ambled up to me and stared. He was soon joined by a crowd of games slowed up, the square became silent. Something new under the sun! I knew as by intuition that I was in for something unusual. The crowd gathered around me in semi-circle. Obviously the next move was mine. I pulled out my watch and beckoned a little Arab urechin to approach and near the tick-tack. He frowned like a disappointed parent and stuck out his tongue at me. Another universal gesture! And I, too, impulsively, stuck out my tongue and I had done this. For that innocent little move on my part unleashed the mob spirit. One of the holder lads picked up a bone which they threw at my head. He missed by inches. But that was merely the signal for all of them to wade in. A shower of missiles assailed me. I had an anxious moment and received some nasty blows.

HEALTH TALKS

A correspondent writes:

I am a young married man of nearly two years standing. (What, married to the same woman all that time?)

My wife is a very nice girl. H. M. Long's "Sane Sex Life and Sane Sex Living," which you recommended. But recently I saw an article from an American medical magazine in which findings of some noted authority in Japan, whose theory runs nearly counter to Dr. Lang's. This Japanese authority . . . rhythm law . . . free time

Now doctor, how can a poor layman know where he is at when the doctor disagrees?

Right after that comes a letter from a feminine reader, and what she says is important.

There is a great deal being written and said nowadays about sterilization and "birth control." But let me tell you one thing, we need to get back to civilization.

Men need jobs that will pay them enough to afford a home, a wife and children. Women need to be put back in the homes to rear their children.

Instead of that, women are given more and more preference when it comes to employment. By the state and the federal governments men are being headed up like sheep, put in a corral, so that they have no hopes of a wife or a home.

No self-respecting young man wants to depend on a woman for his living. No woman wants a husband who can't even support himself. Consequently the moral standard is lowered and the race deteriorates.

If an employed woman accidentally happens to have a baby she is back on the job in a few weeks or even a few days, and daddy or a cheap servant takes charge of baby and home. This is contrary to nature. It is not civilized. No wonder insanity is on the increase.

Put men back where they belong and we won't need sterilization or "birth control."

The correspondent has written a book in 200 words.

If you ask me, I think she is quite right.

There is nothing more to be said—unless you readers yearn to say it.

I did not know what to admire most, the serious faces of the lads which deployed into joyous laughter in a flash, the imprecations with which they threw the ball, or the colors with which the sinking sun powdered the square.

But I was not left long to my solitudinal meditations. One sly youngster with huge black eyes (as Max Band the Parisian master painter eyes) slowly ambled up to me and stared. He was soon joined by a crowd of games slowed up, the square became silent. Something new under the sun! I knew as by intuition that I was in for something unusual. The crowd gathered around me in semi-circle. Obviously the next move was mine. I pulled out my watch and beckoned a little Arab urechin to approach and near the tick-tack. He frowned like a disappointed parent and stuck out his tongue at me. Another universal gesture! And I, too, impulsively, stuck out my tongue and I had done this. For that innocent little move on my part unleashed the mob spirit. One of the holder lads picked up a bone which they threw at my head. He missed by inches. But that was merely the signal for all of them to wade in. A shower of missiles assailed me. I had an anxious moment and received some nasty blows.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

A correspondent writes:

I am a young married man of nearly two years standing. (What, married to the same woman all that time?)

My wife is a very nice girl. H. M. Long's "Sane Sex Life and Sane Sex Living," which you recommended. But recently I saw an article from an American medical magazine in which findings of some noted authority in Japan, whose theory runs nearly counter to Dr. Lang's. This Japanese authority . . . rhythm law . . . free time

Now doctor, how can a poor layman know where he is at when the doctor disagrees?

Right after that comes a letter from a feminine reader, and what she says is important.

There is a great deal being written and said nowadays about sterilization and "birth control." But let me tell you one thing, we need to get back to civilization.

Men need jobs that will pay them enough to afford a home, a wife and children. Women need to be put back in the homes to rear their children.

Instead of that, women are given more and more preference when it comes to employment. By the state and the federal governments men are being headed up like sheep, put in a corral, so that they have no hopes of a wife or a home.

No self-respecting young man wants to depend on a woman for his living. No woman wants a husband who can't even support himself. Consequently the moral standard is lowered and the race deteriorates.

If an employed woman accidentally happens to have a baby she is back on the job in a few weeks or even a few days, and daddy or a cheap servant takes charge of baby and home. This is contrary to nature. It is not civilized. No wonder insanity is on the increase.

Put men back where they belong and we won't need sterilization or "birth control."

REV. WALKER TO START NEW SERMON SERIES

"Is a Creed Necessary to Religion?" the first in a series of six sermons on the general theme, "The Apostolic Creed and Modern Thought," will be the subject of the sermon to be preached by the Rev. John Moore Walker, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, at the morning services Sunday.

The Rev. John A. Wright, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church of Augusta, will preach at the evening services Sunday, inaugurating a series of evening prayer services to be held at the church each Sunday night throughout Lent. These services are under the auspices of the Layman's League of the Diocese of Atlanta.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Merry War WASHINGTON, March 8.—There are other things behind the strange dispute between the New Dealers and Comptroller McCarl.

Grown-up officials do not lose their tempers ordinarily over such a question as whether the navy should pay the return fare of the families of its officers stationed abroad. At least they do not continue to throw cannon balls at each other day after day on such a trivial pretext.

The resistance of McCarl against the speed of all New Deal expenditures is one explanation, but a deeper contributing reason is that McCarl may be a candidate for the republican presidential nomination next year. His name has never been publicly mentioned, but the New Dealers keep as close an eye on the opposition camp as they do on their own. They have heard that McCarl is a potential candidate and have seen signs to verify it.

CHANCES It is not as astounding as it may sound. McCarl's term expires next year. He comes from the right section (Nebraska) has been out of the republican political messes of the past 15 years, is a stickler for the law and for economy, holds old progressive ties through Senator Norris, whose secretary he once was.

A rally for him could certainly be attempted, although it might lead him to a senate seat more easily than to the White House.

BARRELS This matter was actually discussed at a recent secret meeting of New Dealers who have had spending trouble with McCarl. The agencies which have had greatest difficulty getting him to obey their expenditures are FHA, PWA, HOLC, AAA, NRA and FERA. The treasury has had some trouble, also, and probably others. The only New Dealer who has outwitted the comptroller is Relief Harry Hopkins. When McCarl insisted on auditing all the CWA vouchers, Hopkins made no protest, but summoned a half dozen government trucks and sent the comptroller 15 barrels full of government checks. He then called McCarl on the telephone and said: "Let me know if you find anything wrong." McCarl should be through looking within 15 or 20 years, if he applies himself to the barrels diligently.

IF Few know it, but the estate of the late William E. Humphrey is carrying on his court fight against his removal from the federal trade commission. The suit he started against President Roosevelt before he died has been carried to the supreme court. It was quietly sent there January 25 by the court of claims, which took the issue as to whether Roosevelt had the power to fire Humphreys. If Mr. Roosevelt wins this suit, McCarl may have an opportunity to start a presidential campaign before the expiration of his term.

TARIFF REDUCTION The whooping New Deal publicity about the Belgian trade agreement did not say so, but there was a trick in that treaty.

The lower import duties which we promised to Belgium are applicable not only to Belgium, but to every other country. In other words, the reduced tariffs we granted her are really general tariff reductions.

That was not entirely evident until the customs bureau issued its routine circular No. 1348 the other day, ordering the general reduction on the articles mentioned in the Belgian treaty. Such action is required because we have treaties with most nations promising we will not discriminate against them.

The Yankee traders are now in their storm cellars here awaiting the reaction.

FRANKING Jokes about congressional abuse of the franking privilege are obsolete under the New Deal. It is not congress, but the executive branch of the government, which is responsible for increased costs of carrying free mail.

The records show that this expense increased about 75 per cent last year, from $14,000,000 to $23,000,000. But the cost of carrying free congressional mail fell from $1,000,000 to $775,000.

DISORDER Inner difficulties are developing in the communications commission which will make front page news sooner or later. The old radio commission crowd is not getting along at all with the new members. It is impossible to tell yet what form the break will take.

FORESIGHT Townsend clubs are not confined to those over 60. From California comes reports of Townsend clubs made up exclusively of young people, one headed by a young lady in her teens. The reason officially given for the interest of youngsters in pensions for the old folks is that "it would insure them a better chance for happy marriages." Apparently some of the youngsters have their eyes set on the old boys and girls already.

INSPECTION A new kind of automobile came rolling up to a downtown stoplight the other day. It was streamlined, with two wheels in front and one behind, with the motor over the rear seat. Pedestrians looked inside, and there, sure enough, was Mrs. Roosevelt. She was accompanied by her good friend, Amelia Earhart.

AGE One of the heavier problems of government now is to find out the age of a retired negro railroad worker who cannot remember when he was born. The railroad pension board looked at him and decided he was past retirement age. But Comptroller McCarl informed the railroad that the pension cannot be paid unless some record is presented. There is no record. The matter has not yet developed beyond the conversational stage between McCarl and the pension board, but you may hear about it soon.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise: Like your dad, you regard liberty as an unquestionable right as elemental as the right to breathe. Being restrained and quired to do things against your will has always seemed to you unfair and unreasonable.

Since that is the way you feel about it, let's suppose a case to try your faith.

Sitting in a drug store with friends, you say in your ordinary tone of voice: "I think our great leader is a wet smack." An hour later a policeman takes you by the arm and leads you to a jail cell full of rats and vermin.

Or you are very poor and you can obtain food for yourself and your helpless old parents only by enduring the love-making of a diseased and unwashed police officer.

Or you are required to take a job you dislike, and neither you nor any of your friends can do anything without first getting a permit from little officials who are arrogant, overbearing and insulting.

Well, these are the things that every day in lands that have dictator and more preference when it comes to employment. By the state and the federal governments men are being headed up like sheep, put in a corral, so that they have no hopes of a wife or a home.

No self-respecting young man wants to depend on a woman for his living. No woman wants a husband who can't even support himself. Consequently the moral standard is lowered and the race deteriorates.

Georgia Fugitive 'Lifer' Surrenders for Return

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—(AP) An "escapee from the Georgia chain gang" showed up today at the police station here.

The man surrendered to Patrolman John Yentzen and said his name was Thomas E. Jolly, 42, and that a month ago he escaped from a chain gang in Eastman, Ga., and was ready to return to Georgia to complete a life term for murder.

He was quoted by Officer Yentzen as saying he surrendered out of fear that he would "have to kill another man" because of a fight he had at his rooming house in New Orleans.

A six-month sentence previously given Eugene Smith on participation in the "bug" racket also was upheld by the "bug" court.

SHANK EXECUTED FOR POISON DEATHS

Former Ohio Magistrate Pays Supreme Penalty in Arkansas Prison.

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark., March 8.—(AP)—Mark H. Shank, 43, former Ohio magistrate, died in the electric chair at 7:14 a. m. today for the poisoning of a family of four in Saline county, Ark., in August, 1933.

Before 50 persons who jammed the electrocution chamber, Shank maintained to the end the calm indifference which marked his residence of more than a year in a condemned cell.

He made no statement. Tall, thin and sharp-featured, Shank seated himself in the chair at 7:05 and five charges were turned on in quick succession. He was pronounced dead by the three attending physicians at 7:14 o'clock.

His death warrant, the fifth issued by this state, called for execution at dawn, but a bright sun was well up and streaming through the barred windows of the death chamber when his body was unstrapped from the chair and carried out.

He was convicted late in 1933 for the murder of Alvin Colley, a professional associate, who with Mrs. Colley and two Colley children died after drinking poisoned grapefruit juice. Shank served at a picnic lunch.

Shank said in a reputed confession shortly after his arrest that Colley had attempted to blackmail him in connection with a case pending in Ohio. Shank had practiced law in Akron for 15 years and was once a suburban magistrate.

SHANK'S WIFE COLLAPSES

WHEN TOLD OF DEATH

AKRON, Ohio, March 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Mark Shank, the tall frail woman executed after her husband's fatal fight to save her husband from the electric chair, collapsed today when told of his death. She is in a serious condition.

Fleeing from friends, Mrs. Shank found refuge in a small town near Akron, according to Attorney Blake Cook.

Refusing to eat and unable to sleep, Mrs. Shank has been under the care of two trained nurses for the last two days.

She sent her last message to her husband Wednesday night, before she knew that Friday morning had been set as the execution time.

Mrs. Shank's message urged him to keep up courage and that she would continue a fight in his behalf.

CHARLES GRIFFIN, 63, DEPUTY SHERIFF, DIES

Charles Griffin, 63-year-old Fulton county deputy sheriff, died Friday at noon at his residence at 666 Killian street, S. E.

He had been in failing health for a year and had been seriously ill of heart trouble for several months.

Mr. Griffin had been a deputy sheriff eight years, having been appointed by Sheriff James I. Lowry. Previously he was a train-caller at the Terminal station. Most of his work as a county employee was at Fulton tower, where he was in charge of the front entrance.

Surviving are his wife; three daughters, Mrs. J. T. Leach, Miss Kathryn and Miss Frances Griffin; three sons, David L. Griffin, of Los Angeles, wife Charles Jr., and Raymond Griffin, of Atlanta.

Alyce Jane Improves As Mail Increases

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 8.—(AP)—Alyce Jane McHenry, 10-year-old Omaha girl, was smiling again tonight, four days after a critical operation through which the misplaced stomach and other organs were transferred from her left chest to the abdominal cavity.

The child's mother, Mrs. Lucille McHenry, also smiling, said she was "very happy." Alyce Jane, who is now known as "Sunshine," was for the first time since the operation last Monday, her mother said, taking an interest in her surroundings, eager to inspect gifts and curious about the avalanche of mail that has poured in at the Thredale hospital.

The little girl is elated over her new-found "tummy."

"Look at my stomach," she exclaimed as the incision in her side was being dressed. "I never had a stomach like this before. I'll have to have all my dresses cut over to make them fit."

Mrs. Browning Named In Holdup Indictment

Mrs. Leslie Browning, who several days ago confessed that she waited in an automobile while her husband and three men committed holdups of Waldo's dry cleaning establishment and the Cox-Carlton hotel, was named in an indictment returned by the grand jury Friday.

James A. Browning, the husband, Dan Tolbert and Albert Douglas, also were named in the bill, which charges the quartet with robbery.

Browning and Hugh Lynch had previously been indicted for the attempted robbery of Mrs. Fred L. Walker, wife of a concessionaire at Base Hospital 48, in which the intended victim resisted and routed the bandits.

What's Greater than Great?

The present year, it seems, was destined from its outset to be one of disturbance, shock and stress. Socially, economically, politically, and even geologically, the tempo of 1935 seems to be fast. Why, when the year was a bare three hours old, Georgia was walloped by an earthquake. Yes, a real earthquake.

My friends Geoffrey Crickmay and Lane Mitchell have prepared a splendid report on this earthquake, which appears in the Forestry-Geological Review for March. Their data were accumulated in a most interesting way. These men mimeographed a set of questionnaires and with nothing more definite than a newspaper report of the earthquake for a starter, went into north Georgia and began to ask questions. Now just imagine, you who have the dinner on the stove, how you would feel if some nice looking fellow rang your doorbell and inquired politely if you had noticed an earthquake on such and such a date. Would you wonder if one had escaped from the geology department and the young man before your eyes was prepared to round it up and bring it back? Or would you take a scientific interest and help that chap get his data?

There were enough of the latter class throughout north Georgia to enable the geologists to determine the epicenter of the earthquake and the direction of travel of the shock. They even were able to draw a map, showing the area involved in the quake. Actually, this tremor was more extensive in North Carolina than in Georgia, but our enterprising geologists were not to be stopped by political subdivisions of a natural phenomenon. They got all the data they needed plus a great deal that was furnished by observers whose enthusiasm overshadowed their sense of accuracy.

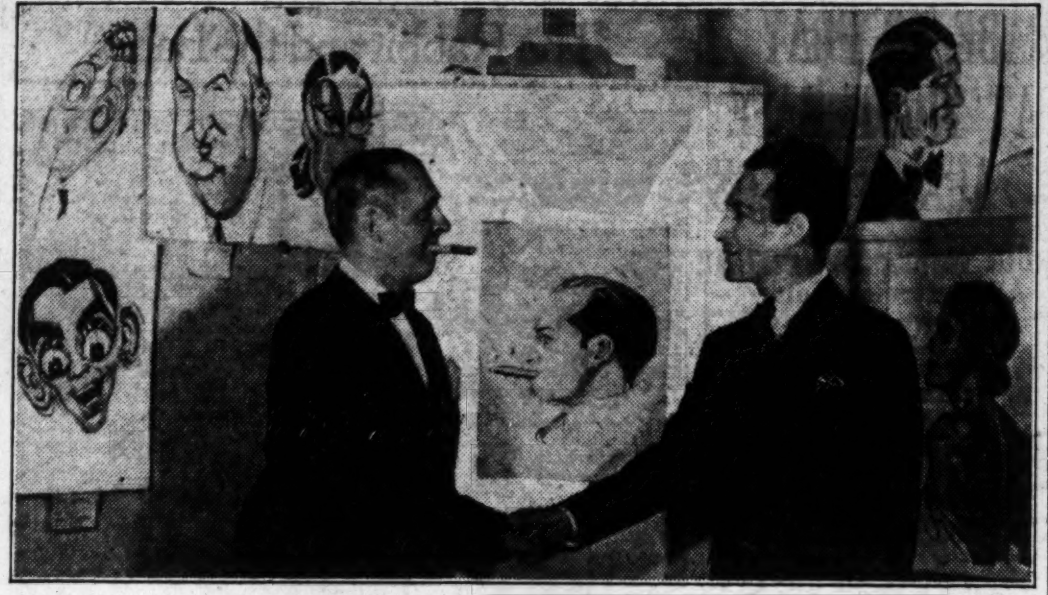

This is the eighth earthquake recorded for the state, but we have the comfortable assurance of our geologists that we are not likely to experience tremors of great violence due to the geologic stability of our portion of the earth's crust. There is a disturbing thought expressed in the report of Crickmay and Mitchell, however, and that is that the crust of the earth is in a constant state of tremor—microseismic shock—and is not stable at all. Having once settled in my mind the idea of building my house on the rocks, I believe I had better reconsider and not build a house at all. A tent would serve as well.

Copies of this article are available for distribution at the offices of the geology department in the state capital.

Ben Bernie, the 'Ole Maestro' of the Radio, Pays Visit to the Maestro of Caricature

As one "maestro" to another—Moro Gonzalez, "master of parody," is shown above being congratulated by Ben Bernie, "the ole maestro" of radio fame, upon completion of a sketch of himself. The bandmaster recently visited the studio of the famous artist to pose for a caricature. Gonzalez is scheduled to arrive next week to produce a series of sprightly caricatures of Atlanta notables for The Constitution. In the accompanying article the artist explains views of Bernie and himself on the new present-day humor and describes the interview-sitting.

By MORO GONZALEZ, Noted Mexican Caricaturist. You can tell it to the people of Georgia.

Any fellow who harbors the belief that the American sense of humor has achieved maturity is a friend of mine. . . . "Come in!"

Through the studio door enters the "ole maestro" himself. . . . Ben Bernie has spent eight years selling the word "maestro" to the American public. . . .

He poses minutes. . . . and spends an hour in defense of the higher intelligence in American humor. He "chaws" his everlasting cigar, saying: "Obvious humor has been replaced by a subtle sense of burlesque."

"Obligatory to the fate of his countenance, the maestro continues: 'Popular taste has long ago removed the screaming clarinet from jazz music.'"

The inference is that a muted cornet and soft waltzes are an indication. . . . The American senses do not now require violent expression. Sledge-hammer humor and low comedy have gone the way of the Charleston. . . .

A curvilinear lower half of the profile is added. . . . It belongs to the self-same gentleman who has made capital of a "voice on the air."

He has reaped good will by a simple device. . . . It's elementary strategy. . . . For 62 weeks a year he has referred to "those present" as the "younger members of the intelligentsia." The flattering title has been applied to the gals and guys from Chicago's midway. . . . Also to those from Main street in Dubuque, Iowa. There is the charm, mine friends!

The long ash of his cigar is sketched in. . . . He is not far wrong when he expresses a ponderous opinion. . . . "There are as many sophisticates in small Idaho towns as there are on Park avenue. . . . There is no more 'hinterland.'"

His basso profundo voice explains that slapstick is dead. . . . that teasing buffoonery has come to stay. . . . Bravo! An enlightened press, the radio and talking pictures have made the flippant innuendo a thing of the moment. It calls for a dash of tabasco to warm the heart. . . .

Alas and alack! He's just a fiddler on one foot, but toils! The fate of the world has been decided. . . . and editors may ponder. . . . But there is still an unwholy joy in the bosom of the spectator when a fellow has been decided. . . . I'll be seeing ya!

Designed to facilitate the building of a highway through the Okefenokee swamp, Georgia's natural wonderland, a bill authorizing the federal government to acquire rights of way for road construction through the swamp was passed today by Governor Eugene Talmadge.

John W. Bennett Jr. and Russell Twitty, Ware county representatives who sponsored the measure, expressed delight at the signing of the bill and the hope that the federal government shortly would apply relief and public works funds for the building of a road through the swamp, one of the few areas in the nation where wild life thrives as it has thrived for hundreds of years.

Embracing an area of 700 square miles, Bennett said that the swamp was one of the most beautiful spots in the world, and was rich in wild life.

The state highway board is now making a survey of the swamp to ascertain the approximate cost of building the road, and to determine the best route for such a road.

Jones, Chief Sturdivant told them, was a notorious jail-breaker, and had broken out of every jail in which he had been confined. He also advised the Greenville officers that Jones, who was arrested and is being held in the South Carolina city under the name of Frank Robinson, was known to associate with Charles Huffmaster, who on one occasion broke out of a Tennessee jail within two hours after he had been locked in.

Greenville police told Chief Sturdivant that one of the men arrested in a tourist camp Tuesday with Jones had been identified as Huffmaster and that the Atlanta police were welcome to both Jones and Huffmaster. Huffmaster, Chief Sturdivant said, was wanted in Georgia and Tennessee on charges of burglary.

Georgia has enough charges against Jones at this time to assure him 20 years at least, Chief Sturdivant told the Greenville police.

Despite the attitude of Greenville authorities Thursday night, Detective Dailey left for the South Carolina city, confident he would be able to convince the authorities there that Jones should be returned to Georgia to answer charges here.

Atlanta Auto Plants Will Vote Next Week

Employees in the Atlanta plants of the Chevrolet Motor Car Company and the Fisher Body Company will hold elections next week to name representatives of bargaining agencies at the two plants, it was announced Friday by R. A. Ryder, one of the election judges.

The elections will be sponsored by the automobile labor board and will be supervised by 25 election officials from the board. The nomination election will be held Tuesday and the final election Friday, March 15.

DEKALB JURY URGES SLOT MACHINE "WAR"

Declaring that slot machines have encouraged gambling among the youth of DeKalb county, a drive to rid the county of the machines was urged Friday in presentations of the DeKalb grand jury.

Among other recommendations in the presentations were ones indorsing the establishment of a state court identification board, a state police force and laws providing for the sterilization of criminals.

Support of the Sibley bill, now in the general assembly, seeking revision of the state criminal code, also was urged.

DeKalb law enforcement officers were highly commended in the presentations.

SCREW WORM FUND MAY BE HELD UP

Proposal Coupled With General Appropriations Measure.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Delay of the federal screw worm control program, with possibility of the pest gaining serious headway, appeared likely today, for want of funds.

President Roosevelt asked congress for $480,000 to finance eradication work, but the fund was tied to the general appropriation bill and will not be available until this bill is enacted, which might require weeks.

Possible consequences of such a delay were emphasized by a department of agriculture warning that "every reason to believe the southeastern states face another screw worm outbreak." The department added that rigid precautions must be taken to avoid a repetition of the "screw worm disaster of 1934."

Meanwhile, the bureau of entomology said its control work will be "very limited" until it obtains additional money, explaining that its regular funds were about exhausted.

The bureau said, however, it would do all it could to advise farmers in methods to treat heavy losses of live stock because of the pest. A bureau bulletin issued through the agriculture department Wednesday said that April 15 was the dead line for all farm practices which leave open wounds on live stock, and suggested that animal breeding be timed to the young were not born in the fly season.

The screw-worm fly, comparatively new in this country, deposits eggs on wounds of animals and these hatch quickly into maggots which dig into flesh and cause death.

They got all the data they needed plus a great deal that was furnished by observers whose enthusiasm overshadowed their sense of accuracy.

This is the eighth earthquake recorded for the state, but we have the comfortable assurance of our geologists that we are not likely to experience tremors of great violence due to the geologic stability of our portion of the earth's crust. There is a disturbing thought expressed in the report of Crickmay and Mitchell, however, and that is that the crust of the earth is in a constant state of tremor—microseismic shock—and is not stable at all. Having once settled in my mind the idea of building my house on the rocks, I believe I had better reconsider and not build a house at all. A tent would serve as well.

DUDLEY GETS LIFE IN MILL SLAYING

Four Hours' Deliberation Required To Find Textile Union Man Guilty.

J. A. Dudley, former textile union head, was given a life sentence Friday in Fulton superior court after a jury had found him guilty of the murder of James H. Patrick, Martell mill superintendent, who was shot and killed last December. The jury recommended mercy. The jury's verdict was returned after about four hours' deliberation. Defense attorneys announced that they will seek a new trial.

Dudley also is under indictment for the murder of Henry T. Boynton, department boss at the mills, who was also slain in the dual killing. Solicitor-General John A. Boykin said that the case will be placed on the calendar at an early date.

Dudley told the jury that he fired in self-defense when the men attacked him with chairs after he had asked that he be reinstated as a mill worker. He contended that he was dismissed because of union activity. The state produced evidence to show that Dudley reloaded his gun and fired at Boynton after he had already emptied six bullets into the bodies of the two men.

Metropolitan Open Tourney Dates Changed to March 30-31

There is plenty of fresh, loose money in the land, especially in the sections where the hoes run and the playboys and playgirls go for recreation.

The closing weeks at Hialeah in Florida and Santa Anita in California show new records in wagering there, with the state, of course, getting a take of about 10 per cent.

In those two spots the boys and gals seem to have had an almost unlimited supply of sporting money, which is the loosest, freest money in the world.

At Hialeah the first 33 days of racing saw $9,806,949 go through the mutual machines. This was more than a million better than the 1934 figures of $8,630,335.

Those figures for the first 33 days began to gain momentum. At the end of the 39th day, just six more days, the betting total had reached the sum of $11,774,360. This was more than a million and a half more dollars than came through the year before.

The average daily sum wagered was $304,907. At Santa Anita the wagering had an average of $221,587 for 53 consecutive days. The amount wagered was $11,743,311. The Florida crowd seems to have poured the money in there a little faster than the California race-goers.

At 10 per cent it may be seen that the states of Florida and California will pick up a nice sum of money in taxes, each getting better than $100,000 from just two tracks.

Each track employs the parimutuel system, which takes too much cut. Licensed bookmakers work in New York, and Baltimore is planning to replace the mutual machines with bookies.

They will pay a license fee of $3,500 annually and must be paid by each bookmaker.

There are, of course, bookmakers in every city of size in the United States. They are not taxed. It would be interesting to know, for instance, just how many thousands of dollars are wagered daily in Atlanta on races at the various tracks.

DERBY COLTS RUN TODAY.

Colonel E. R. Bradley's Black Helen, sired by Black Toney, is the favorite today in the running of the Florida Derby.

The filly was not nominated for the Kentucky Derby by the owner of Idle Hour farm, he having tried fillies for the last time in the mile-and-a-quarter test at Louisville when he backed Bazaar heavily last spring and saw her finish far back.

But other Kentucky Derby colts will run in the Florida event today. Among them are three well-liked horses. Roman Soldier is highly regarded today, as are Brannon and Morluck. All three are entered for the Kentucky stake.

Mantaga, Tuticuro and Blackbird are other Kentucky Derby entries running today. The 1933 Florida Derby furnished the third-place Kentucky Derby winner, Charley O coming in behind Broker's Tip and Head Play as the former won in a slashing stretch drive with the two jockeys slashing away at each other.

Had the rules been strictly enforced, Charley O would have been declared the winner of that Derby. As it was, the two jockeys were suspended for 30 days each.

Don Meade, who booted Broker's Tip home that day, will be up on the Bradley filly, Black Helen, in the race this afternoon.

FIRE AT THE TRACK.

Fire destroyed some stock at Lexington last week. Fire at the race track is as much of a horror as would be expected. Last year's fire on Derby eve was a great and dramatic thing to see.

Louisville was jammed with visitors that evening. It was just after the dinner hour that word came the barns were on fire at the Downs, the barns where more than a million dollars' worth of racing horses were quartered.

A fast taxi and a driver who knew the way through back streets and could thus avoid the traffic jam, got there quickly and I piled out to see the red glow behind the giant stands.

An Atlanta police card served to get one through the gates. The infield was quite dark and crossing it was an adventure. It contained hundreds of fire-maddened horses. They were racing about. All sorts of reports were to be heard.

But once across the infield it was learned that only one of the Derby entries was in that plunging, racing lot of horses.

When the two burning barns were extinguished the work went on in the infield. And it was an old white lead pony which saved the night. The horses could see him in the dark. And so he bore his rider about, patiently finding the lost ones, and they followed him to the gates where attendants caught them.

But crossing that infield, with the terrified whinnying of the horses and the sound of their plunging feet in the air, was an experience.

CAVALCADE AND MATA HARI.

I saw Cavalcade and Mata Hari before returning to town. They were two favorites for the big race the next afternoon.

Neither had been disturbed by the fire. They had, so the trainers said, seemed a little restless and had seemed to wonder at the odor of smoke and at all the activity. But they were not disturbed.

The guards were all about. They guard those stables as the federal reserve bank guards federal money.

Mata Hari ran her heart out the next afternoon, finishing fourth, while Cavalcade went to win. The mile and a quarter is just too far for the lady horses to run.

Racing Fans Plan Equipoise Welcome

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 8. (AP)—Racing fans today laid plans for a royal welcome, with all the fanfare of a civic holiday, to celebrate the home-coming of Equipoise at the C. V. Whitney farm near here next Monday afternoon.

It will be the first public reception any thoroughbred has received since the retirement of Man o' War a decade ago. Equipoise is considered the greatest thoroughbred since Man o' War. He has won $338,610 for his owner in 51 starts, yielding only to Sun Beau as an all-time money winner.

On the program are Mayor Charles R. Thompson, County Judge W. E. Nichols and president of the board of commerce, W. Emmet Milward. By Pennant out of Swinging, both owned by C. V. Whitney, Equipoise holds the world's record for the mile, 1:34 2-5, which he set as a four-year-old June 30, 1932, at Arlington park, carrying 128 pounds.

FLORIDA DERBY ENDS HIALEAH RACING TODAY

Black Helen and Morluck Share Favorite's Role in Event.

MIAMI, Fla., March 8. (AP)—Hialeah Park's 45-day racing season, one of the most highly successful in years, reaches a dramatic end tomorrow with a bang-up eight-race program topped with the sixth renewal of the $15,000 Florida Derby.

Thirteen crack three-year-olds, including all of the pre-race favorites, were named today for the historic classic, which will be run over a mile and one-eighth route.

E. R. Bradley's Black Helen, ridden by Bloodroot, shared the favorite's role in the early wagering line with J. H. Louchheim's Morluck at odds of two to one.

Morluck, recently shipped here from his South Carolina stable, is the only one of the 13 nominees that has not made a public test at Hialeah Park.

SECOND CHOICE.

Roman Soldier, owned by Elwood Sackman, has been made second choice in the future book at odds of 10 to 1. He has been the winning sensation of the season here, capturing three major stake races and defeating most of the derby nominees with the notable exceptions of Black Helen and Morluck, whom he has not faced.

Lightly treated in the weights, with an impost of 113 pounds, Black Helen will go to the post with Jockey Don Meade up. Eddie Arcaro will ride Bloodroot while Bobbit Merritt will be atop Morluck. Silvio Couci, the hard-driving Italian, will handle the reins of Roman Soldier.

Not only is the derby purse the largest in years, but the amount of pari-mutuel wagering at the track will shatter all records since horse racing was legalized in Florida in 1931.

For the first 45 days of the meeting $1,094,180 was bet by the public through the pari-mutuel windows. Walter H. Donovan, secretary of the state racing commission, predicted that by the time the last race is run tomorrow, the total wagering for the Hialeah Park season would approach $13,750,000.

Last year's total wagering for the entire 45-day season at the track was only $11,692,601.

GREAT INCREASE.

The daily average betting this year aggregated $302,190, compared with $259,835 a year ago, an increase of $42,355 daily.

The largest amount wagered on any day this season was $400,415 on February 16. The last year's record was $375,622 on February 24.

On Derby Day a year ago the total amount wagered was $342,646, which total promises to be greatly surpassed tomorrow.

Following the closing of Hialeah Park, Tropical Park, which ran a 28-day racing season in December, will open again on Monday and continue until April 1. At the December meeting, $4,171,330 was wagered through the pari-mutuel machines.

MIAMI, Fla., March 8. (AP)—Here are the entries for the $15,000 Florida Derby, which will be run tomorrow at Hialeah park, with post positions, jockeys, weights, owners and probable odds:

MIAMI, Fla., March 8. (AP)—Led by Mel Ott and Dick Bakula, the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 0, as the major league spring exhibition season got under way.

Ott connected with three hits, all singles, while Bartlett's sacrifice in the first and his triple in the third figured in the Giants' first two runs. Hank Lieber and Jimmie Fox, making his 1935 debut, the Athletics' extra-base bluffs, the former getting a triple in the eighth to drive in the National League's final run and the latter a double in the seventh.

Twenty Grand On High Seas In New Quest

By Orlo Robertson.

NEW YORK, March 8. (AP)—Traveling in a manner befitting a thoroughbred champion, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand today sailed in quest of new laurels on the English turf with the 1934 Ascot gold cup as his special objective.

Rated one of the greatest horses ever bred in America and winner of $281,700 in purses, the seven-year-old son of St. Germans shipped aboard the American Banker. He had as a traveling companion, Cubist, a three-year-old, which occupied an adjoining stall. Cubist also will race in England.

No thoroughbred race horse ever traveled in more splendor and with greater care taken for his comfort. His padded stall is 8 by 10 feet with 12 inches of deep moss in the bottom to protect the feet that carried the famous colt to the three-year-old championship in 1931 when he ran the mile and one-quarter of the Kentucky Derby in 2:01 4-5 for a new record.

During the trip, he will be provided with the best of feed, especially peeled by Albert Hare, who has been in charge of livestock and race horses on ocean voyages for 25 years.

Twenty Grand was consigned to Captain Cecil de Roche, well-known English trainer, at Freemason Lodge, near London. There he will be conditioned for a year with the possibility he will be entered in several overnight events later in the season when he has become acclimated.

CRACKERS OFFER FOUR PLAYERS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 8. (UP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British racing driver who yesterday set a world record of 276.58 m. p. h., decided today that he would make another attempt to realize his life's ambition, a speed of 300 m. p. h.

Campbell's decision to take to the beach once more in Bluebird was made following a conference with city officials.

Campbell will remain in Daytona Beach until late March in the hope that nature will provide him with a better racing strip than he had yesterday.

"Sometime between now and March 20th," Campbell said, "I hope to be able to drive Bluebird at the speed of which she is capable. If, however, such a beach has not arrived by March 20, I shall abandon my plans and pack up."

These are probably all the players who will be offered right now, since Manager Eddie Moore wants to look over the other 10 Daytonians and Herman Cole, two young outfielders signed from semi-pro ranks, and Catcher Charles (Happy) Vance, who served with the Crackers as understudy to Joe Palminiano most of the season to win.

The Crackers hooked up with Portsmouth when the Southeastern league fell through. They had hoped to have a farm at Macon.

Koehler, who played several positions for the Crackers last year, already has been nominated as the Crackers' choice to manage the club.

"Case of Howling Dog"
Seen at Georgia Today
"The Case of the Howling Dog," Warner Brothers' latest and most baffling mystery murder drama, opens at the Georgia theater today with Warren William and Mary Astor in the stellar roles.

Not only is the picture, based on Erle Stanley Gardner's story, one of the strangest mystery plays screened, but it is climaxed by a sensational murder trial in which a beautiful society woman faces the hangman's noose, charged with the killing of her husband.

The spectacular trial also uncovers a series of other murders. The police never actually solve the crimes, although the spectator is given a peep behind the scenes.

Warren William is the famous lawyer and Mary Astor his client, while Helen Trenholme supplies the romantic interest as the sweetheart of William, who helps him in the case. Dorothy Tree has the role of the sweet heart of one of the slain men and is the state's star witness in the murder trial.

Others in the cast include Allen Jenkins as the dumb detective, Grant Mitchell as the vindictive district attorney, Helen Lowell, Gordon Westcott, Harry Tyler, Arthur Aylesworth, Russell Hicks, Frank Reicher and Addison Richards.

Realistic Circus Film Is Feature at Rialto

The big top and the carnival have been favored themes for the movie producer since the original stage play, "The Barker," got onto the screen and showed what a happy medium it is for depicting circus life. The story of the circus does not vary much, and the theme of "Carnival" at the Rialto is a practical duplicate of another one of the same kind.

HOUSE APPROVES WINE SALE BILL

A bill introduced by Representative J. Rendell Terrell Jr., of Troup county, to amend the present traveling inspection committee of both houses and senate, to conduct all inspection of state properties, was passed by the house today.

Representative Terrell, in support of his resolution, said the state spent $10,000 every two years sending the various committees around the state and as much good could be derived for the state through support of one committee at a cost of approximately $2,000.

Introduced by Representative Carlisle Cobb of Clarke county, the wine bill provides that the making of wine for domestic and commercial use be legalized. No tax is applied and alcoholic content is not limited. Legality of the bill is dependent upon repeal of the existing dry laws.

Cobb explained that he did not propose a tax as he desired to promote temperance so far as possible. The farmer would have a monopoly on the wine making under terms of his bill, as he would produce the necessary products, Cobb said.

Home Brew Voted Down.
The house voted down an amendment which would have permitted the making of home brew.

Bitter debate in both house and senate earlier in the day was prompted by action of the senate in postponing consideration of pending home-stead tax laws and in fixing limitation of debate for the remainder of the session.

The vote was 28 to 6 on the motion to postpone the home-stead tax bills and all substitutes, and 29 to 3 to limit debate.

Almost as the senate was voting, the senate of Georgia, in a session held at the Georgia state capitol, Augusta, charged in the house that Governor Talmadge had "political henchmen" in the senate, and that the senate was using every method around to delay action on important bills.

The Talmadge charges brought Representative H. B. (Hell Bent) Edwards into the house in defense of his friend, Governor Talmadge, and Speaker E. D. Rivers had difficulty in finally persuading him to stop talking.

Refuses to Yield Floor.
Feelings were highest when Edwards, informed by the speaker that his time had expired, refused to yield the floor.

Whirling toward the chair, Edwards demanded: "What are you going to do about it? I say, what are you going to do about it?"

He was speaking on a resolution offered by Harris censuring the senate for ordering delay in the tax exemption bills, of which he is already passed the house. Speaker Rivers is his author. Friends finally persuaded him to take his seat.

Harris called the senate a "political graveyard," and asked the house "to make the people" what was happening "across the house" reference was to the senate chamber which is opposite the house in the capitol building.

Laurens Escapes.
The senate flare-up was caused when Senator Larsen, of Dublin, took violent exception to action of his fellow senators in passing the tax exemption bills. He declared he did not propose "to be gagged" by any limitations on debate and that he was speaking "across the house."

Rising to point of personal privilege he charged the limitation on debate was the result of "a contemptible frame-up."

"Tax relief has been gagged in this senate long enough," he said, adding that the home-stead tax exemption bills, which he introduced, and others had remained in committee "for 30 days."

"And now you are gagging them in the senate," he said, "because one man had nerve enough to fight for the rights of the people."

Larsen referred to a two and one-half hour filibuster conducted Thursday afternoon by Senator Frank A. Dennis, of Eatonton.

DIXIE SOLONS SEEK 4 STATE TAX PACT

Georgians Pledge Joint Action With South Carolina on Issues.
COLUMBIA, S. C., March 8.—(AP) Proposals that South Carolina and Georgia legislatures collaborate on tax, labor and social legislation and that the two states and Tennessee follow North Carolina's lead in substituting indirect for ad valorem taxation emerged from a conference on uniform taxation here today.

After hearing Representative J. M. C. Townsend, of Dade county, Georgia, and Judge J. J. Flynn, of Spaulding county, Georgia, urge removal of ad valorem or property tax systems, the Georgia and South Carolina legislatures adopted a resolution by Representative William L. Lanier, of Richmond county, Georgia, committing the two legislatures to collaborate on tax legislation.

The resolution was amended by Representative M. F. Bush, of Aiken, to include social and labor legislation in the scope of the committee's functions.

Townsend told the legislators from the four states that "we admit that the ad valorem tax system in Georgia is a burden on the people of Georgia and South Carolina, and Tennessee will wake up like North Carolina did" in removing ad valorem and substituting indirect taxation.

"We are coming to that, and we might as well face it now," he concluded. Judge Flynn asserted that "just as sure as God reigns, the states of South Carolina and Georgia and Tennessee are going to have to wake up and take steps to relieve the owners of the burden of taxation."

"I am sold on a general retail sales tax," he told the meeting, "because it is the fairest tax ever imposed, and the easiest to administer. Representative R. L. Harris, of Roxboro, N. C., and Senator Harris Newman, of Wilmington, N. C., explained North Carolina's 3 per cent general retail sales tax and the methods of administering it."

The North Carolinians told the Georgia legislators that their state's property tax but derives all its revenue from indirect taxation. Lanier, in offering his resolution, asserted that "any two states should try to make their tax systems identical" to avoid interstate competition and other difficulties, "they are South Carolina and Georgia."

Representative James F. Corn, of Cleveland, Tenn., the first speaker at an afternoon session, said Tennessee has none of the "new taxes," adding that a sales tax had been tabled recently by the Tennessee senate. He urged enactment of liquor laws in order to draw revenue from "this traffic."

Several bills were passed by the senate before it adjourned for the week-end, including one by Senator Millican, of Atlanta, restricting interest charged by small loan companies to 12 per cent per month, compared with 15 per cent under the present law. The new restriction would apply only to amounts under $300.

Several game and fish regulatory bills and one appropriating $70 to meet an equal amount of federal aid for the United States employment office in Macon were passed. The Atlanta board, council and board of education bill also was passed and sent to the governor.

The game and fish bills would regulate spring, permit the state department of game and fish to restock federal forests in north Georgia, close certain counties to deer hunting, prohibit the storing of game bird or animal except under consent of the game and fish commissioner and prohibit fire shooting of game by night.

Banking Measures Passed.
In the closing hours of Friday's session the house approved a number of banking measures. One, a senate bill introduced by Senator King, of the eleventh district, provides that in the event of a bank failure stockholders of the bank are liable for the full value of their stock, even though they may not have completed their purchase. Thus, a person who has bought a share of bank stock for $100 and paid only $40 on it, would have to pay the remaining $60 due, plus the usual $100 added assessment. The measure received a majority vote and went to the governor for signature.

Three house bills introduced by Harris, of Richmond county, likewise deal with financial institutions. One requires trust companies to secure and invest trust funds by investing an equal amount in United States or Georgia bonds. Another relieves banks and trust companies not receiving deposits of the necessity of filing reports with the state superintendent of banks, at the latter's discretion, the third relieves such institutions from regular or semi-annual examinations, also at the bank superintendent's discretion. All three measures were approved by the house.

Examination of credit unions is provided in a bill introduced by Representative Douglas, of Talbot county, and approved by the house. It sets up a series of fees for such examinations, ranging from $5 to $20.

Regents' Year Changed.
A senate bill changing the fiscal years of the regents of the university system from July 1-June 30, to September 1-August 31, also received the approval of the lower house. The measure was introduced in the senate by Senator Rucker.

Authority to all counties to establish juvenile courts was extended in a bill introduced by Representative Cobb, of Clarke county, and given a constitutional majority. The measure provides that any county may establish a juvenile court upon the recommendation of two successive grand juries. Salaries of such judges shall be fixed by the judge of the superior court and the county board of commissioners.

Senate Bill No. 51, introduced by Senator Redwine, president of the upper house, was passed by the lower house and sent to the governor. It authorizes Georgia building and loan associations to take advantage of the HOLC act in investing funds. Just before adjournment the house passed another senate bill, introduced by Chappell, of the thirteenth district, which limits jury commissioners to one term of six years. At present the commissioners serve six years but may be reappointed for term after term.

Mysterious Phone Call Foils DeKalb County Jail Delivery

A mysterious telephone call to W. O. Parker, DeKalb county chief of police, late Thursday night led to the frustration Friday of what DeKalb authorities described as an armed effort at delivery of three alleged safe-crackers, now under indictment, who were captured February 8 following a gun battle on Snappfinger creek in southeastern DeKalb county.

The anonymous call to Chief Parker said that the men and concealed weapons had been taken to the jail and that they were being held in the DeKalb jail. Parker immediately put another prisoner in the cell with instructions to inform him of the details of the plan. The man said the escape was scheduled to take place Friday night.

The three men, Frank Miller, 35, of Dallas, Texas; George Gray, 45, of New Orleans; and George Brunson, 24, of Hamilton, Ga., were immediately removed from their cells and taken under heavy guard to Atlanta, where they were locked up in the city jail and were being held Friday night incommunicado.

Four Saw Blades Found.
A search of the cells by DeKalb authorities after the men had been removed revealed four steel saw blades and two small bottles, one of which contained a brown liquid and the other a colorless one. Miller told authorities the brown liquid was medicine and the colorless fluid was boric acid which he used to bathe his eyes. Police, however, were skeptical and stated they would have the contents of the bottles analyzed.

The men, who are under indictments on charges of robbing the bank at Macon, and of possessing burglar tools, were captured when they and two companions were loading safe-cracking equipment into an automobile in the woods on Snappfinger creek, near Brown's mill. The DeKalb county policemen, who had been lying in wait for the men to come for the tools, opened fire and with a machine gun, which he fired down when the magazine was emptied.

F.D.R., FIRST LADY AT HOLMES RITES

Former Supreme Court Justice Rests in Arlington Cemetery.
WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—In a sleetstorm that pelted the bare heads of national dignitaries, Oliver Wendell Holmes, the great liberal of the supreme court, went to his final rest in a hero's grave at Arlington today—the ninety-fourth anniversary of his birth.

Near by, as soldiers raised their muskets for a final crackling military salute and the notes of "Taps" signaled the lowering of the body into the grave, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt stood with heads uncovered to the stinging sleet.

The president's countenance was stern and his eyes blinked as the flag-draped casket took into the ground the soldier-jurist whom he had called one of the nation's first citizens.

Chief Justice Hughes and six associate justices also stood near to pay tribute to their departed comrade. Justices Brandeis and Van Devanter were unable to attend because of their health.

Funeral Simple.
There was little outward display of emotion at the simple funeral in All Souls Unitarian church or the military burial in Arlington cemetery.

Friends of the Boston aristocrat, in whose death organized labor said it had "lost a friend," respected what they believed were the jurist's wishes. From the flower-banked pulpit back of his casket they had heard the Rev. Dr. Ulysses G. Pierce repeat words of solace and encouragement spoken by Mr. Holmes long ago.

"We accept our destiny to work, to fight, to die, for ideal aims," Justice Holmes had said. "At the grave of a hero who has done these things, we end, not with sorrow at the inevitable loss, but with the contagion of his courage; and with a kind of desperate joy we go back to the fight."

There were a few vacant pews in the brick-colonial church, but outside hundreds stood in the cold to watch the cortege depart.

Within the few members of the Holmes family, Mrs. Roosevelt, members of the cabinet and friends heard organ music, scriptural readings and favorite poems of the jurist.

Then a hearse bore the body across the Potomac to Arlington, where a military guard transferred the casket to a black-draped caisson.

The members of the supreme court, as honorary pallbearers, left their sleek limousines to stand bareheaded in the sleet until the caisson reached the burial place. The army band burst forth in solemn cadence with "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The president was the first to uncover. A negro messenger who had served Mr. Holmes during his 29 years on the highest court brushed his eyes with his hand.

Overhead, a transport plane, caught in the storm, barely skimmed the tree tops.

The minister read the Twenty-third Psalm, beginning "The Lord is my shepherd," and recited the burial rite.

Three volleys from the rifles of eight infantrymen, the slow intonation of "Taps" and the dignitary turned sorrowfully back to their automobiles.

Mr. Holmes died early Wednesday of bronchial pneumonia after an illness of two weeks.

Annual Rose Show Is Announced By Druid Hills Garden Club

The third annual rose show to be staged early in May by the Druid Hills Garden Club is this year open for exhibits from any amateur rose grower in the state. All specimen classes are open to any one in the state. Mrs. Granger Hansell, chairman, announces that the Atlanta Biltmore hotel has again been chosen as the setting for this magnificent array of blooms.

The exact date of the rose show is to be announced later, depending upon the rapidity of the season in developing roses. The show is timed to catch the first burst of bloom which is always the finest. Any rose grower, whether a garden club member or not, having 25 bushes growing in the garden is invited to make entries and compete for prizes and ribbons.

The rose show will be sponsored by the American Rose Society and by the Georgia branch of that society. Judging will be done according to their rules and regulations. The American Rose Society will award medals and the Druid Hills Garden Club, according to its annual custom, will award ribbons of merit and a silver sweepstake prize.

Of interest to young flower lovers are the cash awards to be given by the Druid Hills Garden Club to the best competitive school exhibit. This exhibit is open only to schools of Greater Atlanta.

The club is also issuing invitations to the garden clubs of Atlanta to compete in the show. Roses may be selected from the different gardens of the members and a cash prize will be awarded to the club having the best decorative arrangement. Each club may enter one exhibit.

There will be a special educational feature of the rose show this year, showing the correct method of pruning roses.

Of paramount interest to rose lovers will be an exhibit portraying the history of the talisman rose, its antecedents, its successors and its sports. This exhibit will be done by Mrs. Charles Le Roux, a charter member of the Druid Hills Garden Club, who is now secretary for the Georgia branch of the American Rose Society.

The Druid Hills Garden Club has been particularly interested in the culture of roses since its organization. In 1931 during the presidency of Mrs. Arthur Tufts, successful Atlanta horticulturist, the club established a municipal rose garden located in Druid Hills Park on Ponce de Leon avenue near Lullwater road. This garden, which contains a vast collection of rose bushes bordered in dwarf box woods, is a source of pleasure and delight to Atlantans and to motorists passing through Atlanta.

Mrs. Fred Messick, president of the Druid Hills Garden Club, has appointed Mrs. Ray Hastings to serve as co-chairman with Mrs. Hansell for the third annual rose show. Mrs. Francis Dwyer has been named chairman of press and publicity.

Mrs. Eugene Booth Entertains at Tea For Recent Brides

Among interesting entertainments planned for the week-end is the tea to be given Sunday by Mrs. Eugene Booth at her Oakdale road residence, complimenting Mrs. Delkin Jones and Mrs. John Venable, whose marriage was solemnized in December.

Mrs. Jones is the former Miss Helen Bach, daughter of Colonel Christian Albert Bach and Mrs. Bach, and her marriage took place at St. Philip's pro-cathedral. Mrs. Venable was, prior to her marriage, Miss Louise Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Ware, and she became the bride of Dr. Venable at the Glenn Memorial church.

Assisting at the tea table will be an attractive trio of the younger set, including Misses Mary Elizabeth Venable, Rosalyn Ware, Mary Bach and Luitia Rockmore. Mrs. Bach and Mrs. Ware will also preside at the tea table.

Mrs. E. R. Rockmore and Mrs. James Spurlock will assist in entertaining. The guests will include 100 members of the social contingent. The entertainment is one of a series being given in compliment to these popular young brides.

St. Charles Garden Club Elects Mrs. Howard Jones as President

Mrs. Howard C. Jones was elected president of the St. Charles Garden Club at the March meeting of the club held at the home of Mrs. Reuben A. Williams, 835 St. Charles avenue, N. E., with Mrs. Samuel G. Hunter as co-hostess, on Thursday.

The other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Jones are Mrs. Reuben A. Williams, first vice president; Mrs. Raymond Sneed, second vice president; Mrs. Henry Johnson, recording secretary; Mrs. Sanford Landers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. P. A. Aicklen, treasurer. These officers will assume their respective duties at the April meeting, the beginning of the club's fiscal year. Committees will be appointed and plans for the year outlined at that time.

Mrs. Jones succeeds Mrs. S. C. Hornbuckle, who has served the club as its president for the past year. The nominating committee, consisting of Mrs. H. L. Bowden, chairman, Mrs. L. L. McMullan and Mrs. Louise H. Park selected this group of officers. The annual reports of all officers and chairmen showed what splendid work has been done by the club during the past year. On account of the absence of Mrs. Hornbuckle, president, due to illness, Mrs. Sanford Landers, vice president, presided.

The club's work for the coming year will be the building of a pool and rock garden, planting and beautifying the terrace and playground of the Osgood Sanders Day Nursery, as well as continuation of the help the club has been giving to an unfortunate family.

Mrs. Sanford Landers was awarded the silver trophy for the month, her exhibit being a beautiful display of pansies. Mrs. Henry Johnson won the attendance prize, a white jardiniere containing a house plant.

Mrs. Arthur Davis and Mrs. O. J. Willoughby, new members, were welcomed into the club.

Member of the St. Charles Garden Club present were Mesdames P. A. Aicklen, James V. Andrews, E. E. Bawell, H. L. Bowden, E. F. Elder, Samuel G. Hunter, Henry Johnson, Howard C. Jones, Sanford Landers, L. L. McMullan, L. A. Smith, Raymond Sneed, Duff Sutton, Arthur Davis, O. J. Willoughby, R. A. Williams and O. H. Wilson. A buffet luncheon was served by the hostesses.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Thursday, April 4, at 10:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. L. L. McMullan, 846 St. Charles avenue, N. E. Mrs. Louise H. Park serving as co-hostess.

MAIDEN VOYAGE

By Kathleen Norris

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Antoinette Taft, 28, attractive and ambitious but unable to hold a job, lives in a drafty top-floor San Francisco flat with her sister Brenda and brother Cliff, who are older. Her 17-year-old brother Bruce, and their Aunt Meg, in her job-hunting rounds she has an interview with Lawrence Bellamy, editor of the Journal of Commerce, who tells her that while his paper does not carry any news of women which might be written by a woman, she thinks she could make a success of soliciting ads. Despite her disappointment she likes him very much, as she tells Brenda later. He's a stunner, a young thing, he tells as Cliff, not much more than 30, I think. As the sisters talk, Cliff tries to take part of the blame, saying, "It's all our fault, I guess. We did the 'Tawnying.' Several times he says he must go, but sits on until Brenda leaves the room. He asks Tony whether she saw the lady and she replies that nothing came of the interview. He speaks of a girl in his office, about to marry, who is always punctual and smartly dressed. He leaves when Brenda returns to the room. Tony says at her failure to get the sort of job she likes. "You'll marry," Brenda says. Tony can feel her cheeks flush resentfully. "May be Barney—" Brenda goes on boldly. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Arnoldson on our paper. Arnoldson told Fitch—Fitch is the managing editor—that he thought Bellamy was the smartest man on the coast, except maybe Anders down in Fresno. Tony knew that the man who was having oysters at the counter was watching her; she looked absently at Joe. "Mr. Greenwood smart, Mr. Burke?" "He is and he isn't," said Joe. "He's a terrible house. Here's Moore. Sit down Buck. This is the new society editor, Miss Taft. Miss Taft, Buck Moore, of the Sunday edition. You'll have to see a lot of old Buck." Tony hardly heard him. She was thrilled; she was happy. The romantic dark brilliant Mr. Bellamy had seen her alone and forlorn and supplicatory this morning in the dreary rain; he saw her tonight with three good-looking men, having oysters at Lorenzo's. And to Mr. Moore she had been introduced as the Call's society editor.

Oh, it was good to have a job again, and to have it spring, and morning, and to be twenty-three! Tony, awakened eagerly, dressed with enthusiasm, finished her breakfast, and piled her coffee cup and berry saucer in the sink. Then came a blank.

"How do you suppose I can get those photographs for Sunday, Brenda?" "I've been wondering," Brenda said. "You'd say the photographers help out, do you think?" "I don't think they'd be allowed to give out pictures for the papers. Just the same, they're my best bet," Tony decided unhesitatingly. She left the house at nine o'clock and went to six photographers. It was always the same. It was not permitted; they were sorry.

At five minutes to one she went into the newspaper office, all the first enthusiasm of the new job clouded by a sense of fear and failure. She hung up her hat and coat and confided her problem to Joe Burke. "Oh, shucks," Joe said. "I'll tell you what you can do. Look over the other Sunday papers for the last few weeks, and telephone the studios for what you want."

"But I've just been to the studios, and they were awfully mean!" "They won't be, if you want pictures that have been used. Or telephone the girls, if you like," Joe suggested easily. "And say that you are going to use an old picture and would like permission to have a new one."

"Yes, but have we old pictures?" "Lord, haven't you seen the gallery?" He took her in there, and she began to feel excited and happy and confident again. When she came back to her desk she telephoned a downtown studio firmly, authoritatively. This was the society editor of the Call speaking.

"I can have the prints there for you in an hour," the voice promised. Tony felt almost giddy with relief, and laughed aloud.

She sat working in a sea of clippings and notes; she was conscious of the increasing stir about her. Men were lounging in the hall and smoking; they all looked curiously at her, and she knew it, although she did not look up. The city editor came in and chatted with her, sitting sideways on her desk; every moment that passed made her feel more and more that she belonged here, that she was holding her own, and the fluttered sensation of uncertainty and novelty persisted, too.

Tony worked away industriously. She clipped, pasted, counted words; her face grew hot and her hair tumbled; it seemed that a tide of paper was rising steadily about her.

Mr. Florence, acting for the absent editor, asked her for her "stuff" for tomorrow. Tony produced it anxiously. He took it without comment; presently came back to ask, "Oughtn't we have the Harriman bridesmaids?" "Oh, should we?" Tony asked agitatedly, her heart hammering and her mouth dry. "How do I—shall I go out there?" "No, I'll get 'em for you," a nice boy named Slosser volunteered lazily, from the adjoining desk. He whirled the leaves of a telephone book. "That's the Paul Harrimans," he muttered. Presently he was penciling hurriedly; he tossed a scribbled sheet to Tony's desk. "Here they are," he told her carelessly. "You fix 'em up."

Her telephone rang; she answered it apprehensively. But it was the pathetic Henrietta on the switchboard; Miss Taft's sister was there, and should she send her in?

Tony went eagerly to the door to meet Brenda, not quite sure that

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK. The brave struggle which Dutch folk have made against the sea has led many persons to take special interest in Holland. I was reminded of this recently when a letter came from a school class.

Many of the pupils spoke of Holland, and I shall give you a letter of one of them as an example.

"Dear Uncle Ray: I read your article in the paper every day, and what I would like you to tell about is the dikes of Holland.

"Holland appears to me as a little country of windmills. I love its low little cottages painted white and blue, and fields of tulips.

"Please if you don't tell about the dikes, tell something else about Holland. Yours truly,

"NANCY VOGLER."

I, too, like Holland; and have enjoyed each visit I have made there. The word "dike" seems to have grown from an old word meaning "ditch." Channels and trenches in one section of England are known as dikes to this day. The modern use of the word, however, is chiefly for banks of earth such as might be thrown up at the side of a ditch, and for walls or dams which are employed to hold back water.

Holland is famed for its dikes. To keep the water from flooding their low-lying land, the Dutch have built scores of dikes or dams. Many of these have been formed partly of wood, of great size being driven down to bed rock. Sand, earth and blocks of stone have been used to make the embankments. In building some dikes, the Dutch use concrete. Water on the land side of the dikes has been pumped away until it fell into the sea, or into reservoirs. The long-armed windmills of Holland have done much of the pumping. More modern pumps have come into use in recent years, but many of the old windmills still remain.

Time and again, during past centuries, Holland has suffered from floods. One section was covered so deeply that the water was left there, and people gave it the name of Verdrongen, meaning "Drowned land." Five hundred and fourteen years ago, one of the most terrible floods took place. Twenty-two villages were destroyed, and there was a loss of more than 100,000 lives.

The Dutch did not give up. They fought the sea; and they have won many battles. During the past several years, they have been busy with the famous Zee Zee project which is adding a large area to Dutch soil.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

He sat slumped over a restaurant table, a newspaper spread out before him. His clothes needed pressing, his hair needed cutting. Every now and then he glanced expectantly at the entrance as though he were looking for somebody. "That man," said my companion, "is a power in the financial world though you would never guess it at seeing him; just wait until his wife comes in. He is evidently waiting for her. When you see her you will know he's good." Sure enough she appeared, a well-groomed, smartly dressed, pretty woman. He rose, helped her off with her coat, pulled back her chair for her and then sat down himself. Straightening up he looked at her admiringly and an animated conversation began. "She is a million dollar 'ad' for her husband," said my companion.

Every wife is a moving, talking picture advertisement for her husband, an advertisement for his personality as well as for his business or profession. She advertises him as she talks about him, by the way she treats him in public, by the way she grooms herself and dresses, by the way she keeps house and entertains and by the way she treats her children and teaches them to treat their father. She can be such a good advertisement for a sorry man that the public would accept him at her valuation. She can be a million dollar 'ad' for a poor product.

There are some women so intent upon good advertising for themselves that they neglect their husbands in the effort to put over their own campaigns. There is a certain woman who is married to a very tiresome man. She is acutely conscious of his social deficiency and consequently in her effort to cover him up she takes the conversation away from him every time he starts off with it. She is ashamed for people to see just how tiresome he is, yet she wants them to understand that although she is married to him she knows how to tell a good story. Instead of covering the husband's deficiency she advertises it.

There is the wife who satisfies her private grudge against her husband by denouncing him in public. If anyone pays him a compliment she takes it away from him or laughs it off. Only recently a woman said to another, "Your husband was the hit of the party the other night. He flattered all the women, told several funny stories and we all agreed he was a divine." "Back flew the rancid answer: 'He never pays me a compliment and I haven't heard him tell a story in 10 years.' Please invite him out again; he may get the habit of being pleasant."

With such an attitude to her husband it is impossible for a woman to teach her children the proper respect for him. They discount him just as she does and what children feel comes out in what they say. They are taught to hear their mother making invalid comparisons of their father to other men, they too make such comparisons. The poor man is at the mercy of an advertising campaign designed to injure him.

Yes, it pays to advertise and particularly does it pay a wife to be a good advertiser for her husband. She not only raises him in the esteem of others but in self-esteem. She primes him to be better, work harder, go further and best of all she wins his appreciation and love for every good "ad" she gives him.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Virginia-Atlanta Rates On Coal Ruled Fair

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission decided today that freight rates on coal from southwestern Virginia to Atlanta and other points in Georgia are not unreasonable and dismissed a complaint of 12 coal companies.

The coal companies, located in Norton, St. Charles, Pardee, Bundy, Eserville and Glamorgan, Va., claimed current rates give undue preference to mines in the Harlan district of Kentucky. The commission said testimony did not show this to be true.

NEW YORK, March 8.—(P)—

Financial markets bogged down today to a rut of narrow irregularity today and the turnover in stocks was reduced to a minimum.

Equities ended a shade lower as rallies in the mines and utilities early in the session were hampered by lack of response on the part of the industrial and rail stocks. Bonds and the leading futures showed no definite characteristics.

Toward the close of bond dealings United States government obligations showed signs of mild recovery from the soft tone of recent sessions and finished well above their lows for the day. Corporation loans were mixed.

Wheat Steady

Wheat was steady, ranging from unchanged to 1-2 cent a bushel higher. Corn was 1-8 to 1-2 of a cent lower and cotton dropped 1-2 of a cent.

The pound sterling held about even after its recent gyrations in the exchange markets, and gold movements gave a little ground against the dollar.

General Motors reported its sales for February at 71,707 cars and trucks, an increase of 21 per cent over the same month of 1934.

Carrier shares appeared disposed to ignore an increase of 51,000 cars in the latest weekly loadings report as compared with the previous 7-day period, which contained the Washington's birthday holiday.

New York shipbuilding met substantial offerings and reaction was pointed to 7, as directors announced omission of dividend payments on the participating and founders' shares.

The day's turnover in the stock exchange aggregated 443,283 shares and the Associated Press average for 60 stocks dipped 1 of a point to 38.6. Nevertheless there were a fair number of small gains and a few minor losses in the list of trading favorites.

Among gainers of 1-8 to as much as 3-4 of a point were American Consolidated at 106 3/4, Allied Chemical at 133 3/4, Santa Fe at 39 1/2, Consolidated Gas at 17 3/8, Woolworth at 54 1/8 and National Electric at 25 7/8. On the other hand many leaders moved about equally in the opposite direction, including Pennsylvania at 10, Union Carbide at 47, International Harvester at 31 and United States Steel at 31 and United States Steel at 31 and United States Steel at 31.

Standard Oil of New Jersey and Sears got down 1 point each at 37 1/2 and 32 1/2 respectively.

BROADENING TENDENCY IN BUSINESS RESUMED

NEW YORK, March 8.—(P)—Dun & Bradstreet in its weekly trade review issued today said the broadening tendency of business has been "resumed."

"It is now evident," it stated, "that the leveling process operating in some divisions last month was nothing but a pause in the general upward trend, and did not permit the interpretation of a reactionary movement."

"March has started with a resumption of the broadening tendency which began last October, with indications that the peaks for the year are not reached until the third or fourth quarter, despite the abruptness of the downturn which the spring has brought."

"While some uncertainty is expected to continue as long as the course of the NRA remains unclarified, business should be aided by the greater intensity of the aggressiveness which now is producing results making for more stability than any temporary emergency or relief program could hope to achieve."

Retail trade, said the review, turned sharply better during the week. "In some districts it is reported that volume was higher by 20 to 30 per cent than for the week preceding."

"The upturn in wholesale buying was prompt and broad, and retailers are hastening their orders for merchandise needed urgently for pre-Easter selling efforts."

Postponed orders are beginning to appear in the market.

"General industrial operations are expanding more rapidly than in February," it said, "with no slowing down in the case of many factories near capacity."

"New highs for the year are being reached for the production of automobiles, electric refrigerators, safety glass, paints and some grades of furniture."

"The shoe factories have yet to reach their spring peak, but in the textile industry some divisions have started to curtail operations."

Sadie Ramsey, 22, of a West Peachtree street address, was arrested Friday morning when she appeared at the police headquarters and requested to see Paul Carter, who was arrested Thursday and is being held on suspicion of receiving stolen goods.

Menefee told detectives that since his release from the Atlanta federal penitentiary he has been "going around" and making a living. He said the first of the year had been employed as a clerk by the FERA.

COUNCIL CUT BILL GOES TO GOVERNOR

Reduction Measure Passed by Senate; Talmadge Approval Expected.

The Atlanta city council, ward and board of education reduction bill was passed Friday by the senate and sent to Governor Talmadge for his signature. The measure did not reach the governor's desk until late in the afternoon and it is presumed that he will act on it today.

The bill reduces the number of wards in the city from 13 to 6, the number of councilmen from 26 to 12 and the number of aldermen from 13 to 6. It also reduces the membership on the board of education from 14 to 6. Under the present set-up, the chairman of the school committee of city council is the ex-officio member of the board of education. Under the new plan this chairman will not be a member of the school board.

The Fulton delegation in both houses has pending a bill creating a new city democratic executive committee composed of six members which will call an election in September of next year to provide for the election of the new council and the new board of education under the six-ward plan.

Terms Extended One Year. The bill extends for one year the terms of office of all members of city council which expire at the end of this year in order that when the reduction takes effect January 1, 1937, an entirely new council will be seated. The omnibus charter amendment

Robbery by Appointment Is Newest Innovation

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Two urban bandits in evening attire invaded the Park avenue apartment of Mrs. Georgia Chapman Lloyd tonight, bound Mrs. Lloyd and her daughter, Alice, 27, with picture wire, ransacked the place thoroughly and made good their escape.

They took with them, police said, a $1,500 diamond brooch and other jewelry valued at $500.

The bandits, both about 35, called the Lloyd apartment by telephone yesterday afternoon. One posed as a "Mr. Scott" and said he had met the daughter, Alice in Paris four years ago. They arranged a meeting for tonight.

also provides for the election of all city department heads by city council instead of by the people, as at present. Under the provisions of the measure the council which takes office in January will name department heads in July. All members of council and the mayor are to be elected for three-year terms.

Governor Talmadge has indicated he will sign the bill. In discussing it last week he said it was his usual custom to sign measures in which all of the board of education were in accord and that inasmuch as the council reduction plan had been approved by the people in a referendum several years ago he saw no reason for not signing it.

Hearing Asked For. It was understood Friday, however, that several members of council who will be legislated out of office by the terms of the new act have asked the governor for a hearing on the bill before he acts on it. Whether or not such a hearing will be held has not been announced.

The measure as finally approved by both houses found the members of the Fulton delegation, Senator G. Everett Millican and Representatives William B. Hartsfield, Bond Almond and Ralph L. Ramsey in accord with the DeKalb delegation, composed of Senator Clarence Vaughn, and Representatives Paul Lindsay, Carl Guess and David Ansley.

The house passed a bill Friday providing for the creation of a seven-member county board of public welfare to handle relief funds and cooperate with the Georgia emergency relief administration. The board would be appointed by the county commission. The measure was sent to the senate.

Another bill passed by the house Friday was the measure sponsored by the DeKalb county delegation providing for the issuance of a permit for cemeteries by the county commissioner. This measure also went to the senate.

M. J. GUYTON NAMED DUBLIN POSTMASTER

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(UP)—President Roosevelt sent to the senate today nomination of the following to be postmaster: Georgia—Dublin, Moses J. Guyton.

WASHINGTON AGES ON RACKET PROBE

Atlanta Income Taxes Being Viewed by Men Who Caught Capone.

Age investigators of the department of internal revenue—the men who brought an abrupt halt to the career of "Scarface Al" Capone—will probably be brought to Atlanta to check the incomes of the city's racketeers, it was announced Friday by W. E. Page, internal revenue collector here.

Decision to call in Washington investigators was made after a checkup of the returns filed in 1932 and 1933 by more than a score of Atlanta "number game" operators, bootleggers and lottery kings revealed that only a portion of them filed income tax returns and that of those who did, none reported anywhere near the income popularly supposed to be enjoyed by them.

None of the income tax returns studied by Mr. Page showed an income of more than $10,000 for taxable purposes, and there were only three that were near that figure. Information in the hands of the department of internal revenue indicates that some Atlanta racketeers enjoyed incomes ranging above $30,000 during 1932 and 1933, and that the "take" of one operator during the latter year was far in excess of $50,000.

"Inasmuch as some of the men on the list submitted to us by Solicitor General John A. Boykin did not file any income tax returns, and because none of these racketeers admitted incomes of more than $10,000, I have sent all the information at my disposal to the internal revenue department in Washington," Mr. Page declared.

"The records will be checked in Washington, and then, in all probability, the department will send out its age investigators to make an exhaustive inquiry into the incomes of the men in question. This is the procedure used in the Capone case."

ALABAMA TELEPHONE RATE CUT PROTESTED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 8.—(UP)—Southern Bell Telephone Company today protested the public service commission's order reducing its rates approximately $300,000 annually effective April 1, and demanded a public hearing.

The utility's protest, filed in writing, termed the rate reduction order "wholly unjustified and unreasonable" and contended it was void because the commission issued it without granting a public hearing.

Violators of city ordinances, state federal laws who are arrested by Atlanta police officers hereafter will have to ride to the city jail in the patrol wagons in accordance with an order issued Friday by Chief of Police.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Found guilty of breaking into an automobile, under the special statute enacted in 1933 making the offense a felony, James Lester, negro, was given a four to five-year sentence in Fulton superior court, his term of service being fixed by a jury. Lester is one of the few convictions under the statute. Evidence showed that he took a shotgun from the automobile of P. J. Blanchard, of 225 Altona place.

Bills charging W. H. Morgan and six others with more than 30 burglaries and safe-cracking offenses are being prepared in the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin and will be presented to the grand jury Tuesday.

B. Graham West, city comptroller, Friday was confined to his home, suffering from severe cold. He is expected to return to his duties Monday.

Atlanta's newly completed police station will be equipped with an emergency ambulance, its Councilman of Police station at all hours to assist in administration of first aid to those needing such service.

Riley Elder, municipal revenue collector, Friday was confined to his home with a severe cold which threatened to develop into influenza.

Mayor Key Friday scored the proposed limitation of ad valorem taxes by state, county and city governments asserting: "It is hard to think that anybody can be so unintelligent as to foster a bill of this kind and at the same time expect municipal governments to continue to function."

Patrolman R. E. Carroll reported Friday that thieves Thursday night stripped his auto which was parked in the garage of his home at 9500 Lawton street, S. W. of the four wheels, battery and radio, all valued at $129.50, and also had stripped two wheels from an automobile belonging to E. H. Harper, a neighbor, which also was parked in the garage.

W. B. Seabrook, for three years assistant to Captain S. E. Woodson, head of the identification bureau of the Atlanta police department, Friday was named acting head of the department by special order of Chief Sturdivant who granted Captain Woodson a 60-day leave of absence to regain his health which has been failing.

Paid-up members of the Atlanta Post No. 1 of the American Legion will be guests at a dance which will be given by the post at the Shrine mosque, March 19. It was announced at the meeting of the post, Friday night. Following an intensive membership drive, 675 members are now enrolled in the post.

Eight negroes were arrested and charged with gambling when police went to the home of Effie Maxey, negro, 530 Spencer street, to question the woman Friday night regarding a government check for $37.50 which Ronald Owens, negro, of 380 Gray street, stated the woman grabbed from him Wednesday. Charges of suspicion of robbery, disorderly conduct, possession of whiskey and gambling were made against the woman.

Farmer and His Wife Found Shot to Death

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., March 8.—(AP)—Hacked and shot to death, the bodies of Harold Farnsworth and his wife were found today in their isolated farmhouse two and a half miles south of Randolph.

Mrs. Farnsworth, who had been almost decapitated by an ax blow, was found in the cellar while the body of her husband lay in the living room, a bullet wound through the head.

Farnsworth was 36 and his wife, a former stenographer, was 20 years his senior.

Sheriff's deputies are searching for an unidentified man who had been hired by the Farnsworths a few weeks ago. Farnsworth's coupe is also missing.

INDIANA SENATE VOTES TO OUTLAW HEART BALM SUITS

INDIANAPOLIS, March 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Roberta West Nicholson's bill to outlaw "heart balm" suits was passed by the senate of the Indiana general assembly, 31 to 15.

Its author, a daughter of Meredith Nicholson, United States minister to Venezuela, is the only woman member of the assembly. She was present when the senate acted, but her official comment was: "The bride's mother has nothing to say."

The measure would abolish several causes of action for alienation of affections, criminal conversation, seduction and breach of promise to marry, and would prohibit identification of a co-respondent in divorce or similar actions unless the court so orders. It set up penalties of $100 to $1,000 fine and one to five years' imprisonment for violations.

Already approved by the house, it must be returned there for concurrence in a minor amendment before it is sent to Governor Paul V. McNutt.

PRESIDENT OF W. & J. HITS LONG'S ACTION

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 8.—(AP)—Officials of Washington and Jefferson College today declined an invitation to take part in Louisiana State University's seventy-fifth anniversary celebration on the ground the "high purposes" of the institution have been "subordinated to the political objectives of Mr. Huey Long."

Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of W. & J., sent the refusal today to Dr. J. M. Smith, president of Louisiana State, which will observe its anniversary from April 9 to 12 with an educational conference.

Five Dogs Are Enough, Supreme Court Rules

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 8.—(UP)—How many dogs are a "reasonable number" for a single household? Supreme court justice recently decreed five.

That meant that Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur K. Hitchcock must either destroy or exile 14 old English sheep dogs, about whose barking neighbors have been complaining.

Today the dogs were granted a reprieve when the court signed an order staying his previous decree that the Hitchcocks must reduce their flock of 19 dogs to five by March 15. They stipulated they will take an appeal to the appellate division at the April term and Justice Witschiel readily granted a stay for the higher tribunal determine how many dogs could be reasonably maintained in one home.

AUTO MANUFACTURERS DENY A. F. L. REQUEST

Won't Confer Because Union Doesn't Represent Workers Generally, They Say.

DETROIT, March 8.—(AP)—The Automobile Manufacturers' Association denied today that the American Federation of Labor can speak for workers "generally" in the motor car industry.

The attitude of the manufacturers was expressed in a letter from Alfred Reeves, vice president of their association, to President William Green, of the federation, who sought recently to open wage and working conditions negotiations with the manufacturers independently of the national automobile labor board. The federation several weeks ago announced its withdrawal from the agreement creating the labor board and accused it of bringing about "collective confusion" rather than "collective bargaining" in automobile factories.

Green had asked for a conference with the manufacturers and forwarded a copy of a call by the national council of United Automobile Workers' Federal Labor Union, for a strike vote among its 176 locals.

"Having repudiated the president's settlement," Reeves wrote Green, "representing as it does only a small minority of the industry, we have and having declared itself an aggressor against the peace of the industry, the American Federation of Labor has no authority to be spokesman for the automobile workers generally."

Reeves informed Green that the manufacturers' association is not itself an employer of automobile workers and "does not arrange such conferences as you suggest." He added that the manufacturers were conforming to the agreement of a year ago that averted a threatened tie-up in the industry. He charged that the federation's call for a strike vote was an act of "unprovoked aggression against the welfare of employees" that hampered "the progress of recovery."

Referring to the strike call, sent out under the signature of Francis J. Dillon, A. F. of L. organizer, and 11 members of the national council, United Automobile Workers' Union, Reeves wrote: "The charges which this letter makes of conspiracy, discrimination, coercion, intimidation and of the existence of company dominated and controlled unions, are false and without foundation. Anyone making such charges shows himself to be irresponsible."

Elevator Operators Strike in Brooklyn

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Apartment house dwellers and office workers in 25 Brooklyn buildings hiked up and down forgotten stairways today as the elevator strike spread from the Bronx.

The strike centered about borough hall business district where operators walked out in two office buildings, 22 and 28-story structures, and in the Brooklyn Heights apartment house district.

John J. Troy, chairman of the executive committee of the Greater New York Council of the Building Service Employees Union, said 2,000 men had joined the walkout.

Frank M. Ledwith, chairman of the Brooklyn reality committee on labor relations, issued a statement declaring the strike a failure.

Striking employees in one of the office buildings had been replaced, he said.

Stokers joined the striking elevator operators at four apartment houses and five were allowed to die down.

Police said extra protection had been extended to 25 buildings.

ONTARIO TO NAME THE DIONNE QUINTS WARDS OF KING

TORONTO, March 8.—(AP)—The Ontario government moved today to secure new guardians for its five famous residents, the Dionne quintuplets, by making them "special wards of his majesty the king as represented by the minister of public welfare of Ontario."

A bill was introduced in the legislature by David A. Croll, the welfare minister, empowering the cabinet to appoint a board of guardians with authority over the finances, education and physical well-being of the children.

"These 'active guardians' will share authority with the father, Oliver Dionne, the 'natural guardian,' and with Dr. Allan Roy DeFoe, whether or not the physician is appointed as a guardian."

All the guardians would be directly responsible to the minister whose approval is essential to all contracts and who will hold the quintuplets' money in trust for them until they become 18.

Significance was attached to a section of the bill which reads "contracts entered into by the old guardians are confirmed, but those which did not receive the guardians' approval are null and void and incapable of performance and may not be sued upon in any court."

One suit against the parents and the guardians was filed recently in Chicago, alleging breach of contract.

SENATE BODY VOTES RICE PROCESSING TAX

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—The senate agriculture committee today approved the house bill providing for a processing tax on rice, but postponed the effective date of the tax from March 15 to April 1. The tax would be 1 cent a pound of rough rice between April 1, 1935, to July 31, 1936.

Sally Rand's Classmates To Dance in Church

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 8.—(AP)—Ten pretty girls of Christian College—alma mater of fan dancer Sally Rand—will dance their interpretation of hymns at the First Christian church Sunday night.

Dances may be made a regular part of the church services, the Rev. Dr. C. E. Lemon, pastor, said today. Just now they're in the "experimental stage."

Unlike the recent dances of Ruth St. Denis at New York's swank Park Avenue Presbyterian church, the dances here are designed solely to interpret the old hymns—not to give "individualistic religious expression."

The occasion will be the regular weekly Christian student congregation meeting.

"Of course," said Dr. Lemon, "we will not include dances as a regular part of service until I have had an opportunity to observe their character and the attitude of the girls who dance. The dances (Sunday night) will be presented not in the church proper but in the educational hall."

There will be nothing in the appearances of the dancers to remind worshippers of Sally Rand and her fan or hula.

Murder Investigated In Rich Hobo's Death

CHICAGO, March 8.—(AP)—A probable court investigation of the strange death and stranger "last will and testament" of James Thomas Kelly, 62, Chicago's $100,000 hobo, was intensified tonight with the announcement by Dr. Jerome J. Kearns that Kelly had not died of cancer, as recorded in the death certificate.

Dr. Kearns, coroner's pathologist, completed an autopsy. Two more men were taken into custody to be interviewed.

The body of the mysterious miser—an investor in mortgages, a dabbler in stocks and yet a lodger in squalid flophouses—was exhumed from the Lithuanian National cemetery where he was interred after his death February 26 in the home of Mrs. Bella Butman who was the chief beneficiary in his purported "will."

Dr. Kearns reported that while he found no evidence of "cancer of the pancreas," as set forth in the death certificate, a detailed chemical analysis of the vital organs, requiring several days, will be made.

The two men taken to the detective bureau for questioning were Thomas Butman, son of Mrs. Butman, and Sam Wistar, a handy man at the Butman's residence.
